Today

The Virgin Islands.
Remember Alaska.
When Soldiers Rise.
Heavenly Public Property.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

PRESIDENT HOOVER returned from the Virgin Islands depressed about that territory, purchased from Denmark. He said the islands looked like "a poorhouse," and could have no value except a possible usefulness in protecting the Panama Canal. Such usefulness in itself might justify buying the islands.

Their "poorhouse" condition is not their fault, but ours. The islands were prosperous, manufacturing rum from their sugar cane. Our virtuous prohibition killed their only industry, and impoverished them. It is as though Denmark had bought the southern states from us, and forbidden them to raise cotton, or had bought Detroit, and forbidden manufacture of automobiles.

HOWEVER, NOBODY knows better than Mr. Hoover, who developed wealth from the ground, all over the world, that you can't condemn any piece of land from surface indications. When Seward bought Alaska from Russia for $8,000,000, that transaction was called "Seward's folly."

We bought Alaska, really, to have an excuse for handing some money to corrupt Russian officials, disguising the transaction as a business affair. The Russians had valued Alaska for its catch of sea otters, prized by nobles as a lining for their coats. When the otter catch fell off, they were willing to sell and Seward was laughed at for buying.

READ THESE figures, provided by C. E. Garfield, of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce, as to what the United States has got out of that Alaskan $8,000,000 purchase:

We have taken from Alaska, in gold, silver, copper, tin, lead and other metals $636,385,659, since we bought the land in 1867. We have taken in fish products $861,603,353. We have taken in furs $124,884,772. Other millions in "miscellaneous." A grand total of ONE BILLION SIX HUNDRED AND THIRTY-TWO MILLION, SEVENTY-NINE THOUSAND, TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY-THREE DOLLARS for an investment of $8,000,000. And the wealth of that great territory has hardly been scratched.

Get real estate, a corner lot, well located, or a great country like Alaska, and take care of it, you won't regret it.

There is no knowing what we will find in those Virgin Islands when the well diggers, and others, attack them.

AT EASTER dawn, President Hoover, up before the sun, attended services at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. The world will never identify any of those unknown soldiers.

Ours may have been born in Italy, Scandinavia, Germany, Ireland, anywhere. And, whoever he is, he might be surprised should he arise at midnight and see all the wreaths on his tomb.

PERHAPS AT the last day all the unknown soldiers, resplendent in the glory of heroism, will stand, side by side, before their judge, their names, origins and deeds related as they receive the homage of all that have died since the beginning of the earth.

It would be a strange gathering, assuming that our pugnacious ancestors of the earlier periods be among those present.

THE REV. DR. REISNER objects to Sunday loudspeaker advertising from the sky by airplane, and his objection is sound.

The sky belongs to everybody, no one should be permitted to write advertising on the clouds, or bellow advertising copy into unwilling ears, on Sunday especially.

"The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handiwork."

It shouldn't be made, by loudspeaker, to declare the glory of a dress goods concern, or anything else.

What should be the first and last loudspeaker announcement from the heavens will come in due time, when Gabriel summons us to rise, and explain ourselves.

GERMANY AND Austria continue negotiations for a "customs pact" to help each other in business.

England dislikes the idea, although theoretically in favor of free trade.

France frankly hates it, for today's "customs pact" may become tomorrow's "war pact." And the pact might spread to the Balkan countries, even to Russia, creating a mid-European "bloc" for the under-dog.

AMERICA ENTERED the war 14 years ago. Let's hope it will be at least 140 years before we go into another, especially into one that we didn't start.

The way to keep out of war is to keep out of foreign entanglements. George Washington may be old-fashioned, and, possibly, not as wise as Woodrow Wilson. But he knew that, if you keep away from a man, you are not apt to fight with him.

MR. RASKOB asks all members of the Democratic National Committee to make recommendations for 1932, "particularly on prohibition."

Mr. Raskob, who knows that a house divided against itself is in a dangerous condition, believes that unless opposing dry and wet factions can be recon-

MAYOR KLINE MOVED TO HOSPITAL

City's Chief Brought Here From Cambridge Springs; Under Knife for Boils

Mayor Kline is a patient in St. Francis Hospital.

The Mayor was moved quietly yesterday from his hotel at Cambridge Springs to the hospital, of which he is an official, and operated on for the boils on the neck which have pained him for weeks.

Dr. William O. Sherman and Dr. J. Huber Wagner attended him.

Visitors were denied admittance to the Mayor's room.

The Mayor suffered not only from the boils but from bronchitis and laryngitis while at Cambridge Springs. However, he is believed to have recovered from these last two ailments.

The Mayor took advantage of the ban on visitors by spending the afternoon sleeping, hospital attaches reported.

Mayor Kline first went to Cambridge Springs more than two weeks ago. He returned to the city to attend the funeral of Councilman George J. Kambach and immediately went back and after that developed laryingitis and bronchitis.

TAXI OFFICIALS TO MEET MEN

Leaders of the taxicab drivers' union and officials of the Parmelee Transportation Company were planning today for a conference in hope of averting a walkout of drivers, voted at a special meeting last Friday.

Company officials said yesterday they were willing to confer with William Robinette, conciliator for the State Department of Labor and Industry, and Peter Bollenbacker, of the department's bureau of industrial relations.

Thomas O'Brien, investigator of the American Federation of Labor, arrived in Pittsburgh today and went into conference with representatives of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers.

The result of the meeting was not revealed. It was expected O'Brien would accounce the attitude of the federation toward the threatened strike.

Tonight at 8 o'clock, in their Fifth avenue headquarters, a meeting of the cab drivers will be held to discuss the results of the conference with O'Brien, and to take further action on the proposed walkout.

Bootlegger!

MISS IRENE KNIGHT, 28

BEAUTY JAILED AS BOOTLEGGER

TOWANDA, Pa., April 7.—(AP.)—The striking brunette who was "Miss Buffalo" in the 1925 Atlantic City beauty pageant, collapsed yesterday in Bradford County Court when she was sentenced to 18 months in jail and fined $500 for bootlegging.

Irene Knight, 28, of Tonawanda, N. Y., the former beauty-show entrant and director of music at a Masonic conclave in Los Angeles several years ago, told Judge Charles M. Culver she had resorted to bootlegging only after she had made vain attempts to find other employment in Buffalo and New York.

Her attorneys read letters in her behalf from the police chief of Tonawanda and several theater managers. District Attorney William Rosenfield said he did not believe the woman's story. Judge Culver's sentence and the girl's collapse followed. She was revived and led to her cell.

Canvassers Report $17,697 Collected on Second Day Of $3,000,000 Campaign

Additional subscriptions amounting to $17,697.38 were reported at noon today at a luncheon meeting of the workers in the $3,000,000 drive of the Allegheny County Emergency Association, in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium.

More than 1,000 solicitors were reported at work today as a systematic canvass of the entire Pittsburgh district began. A total of $32,802 was reported yesterday, the first day of the drive.

At a meeting of workers yesterday Wilbur F. Maxwell, executive secretary of the campaign, announced that previous to yesterday a total of $736,384.93 had been contributed to the support of the Pittsburgh Plan.

James Rae, president of the Chamber of Commerce, opened yesterday's meeting with a strong appeal for the generous support of the movement to take men off relief and make them self-supporting on public jobs of permanent value.

CITES DOLE DANGER

Attorney J. E. McCloskey, general chairman of the Emergency Association's campaign, introduced by President Rae, called attention of the workers to the fact that in 1930 England spent $2,000,000,000 for dole to unemployed workers. He reminded them that if worthy movements such as the Pittsburgh Plan fail through public indifference, America may have an expensive and demoralizing dole system on its hands.

Edgar J. Kaufmann, one of the originators of the Pittsburgh Plan, and principal speaker at the meeting, answered critics of the Plan with his expression that neither dole or unemployment insurance

Amelia's Autogiro Record Try Balked

1,000,000 GO TO POLLS IN CHICAGO

Thompson Confident With Career in Balance; Foe Sees Swing to Democrats

CHICAGO, April 7. — A million Chicagoans marched on the ballot boxes today to decide whether William Hale Thompson (Rep.) or Anton J. Cermak (Dem.), is to be world's fair mayor.

From the "gold coast" sector to the First Ward, or "flop house" territory, polling places were jammed. Never in recent years has such interest been manifest in a municipal election.

An army of judges and clerks were on duty at the city's 2,987 precincts. There were more than 1,000 special election watchers. City and county police were ready to respond to riot calls.

BOTH CONFIDENT

"Big Bill," Chicago's chief executive for 12 years, declared:

"It will be the greatest majority of my career—a landslide for your Mayor."

Supporters of Cermak, a Bohemian boy who rose from the Illinois mine fields to become president of the county board of supervisors, said there would be a swing to the Democratic column similar to that of last fall, which resulted in the election of James Hamilton Lewis as U. S. senator.

Political experts agreed Thompson faced a crucial test. If he is defeated, it may mean the permanent retirement of the man who achieved national attention by threatening to "bust King George in the snoot."

VICTOR FAIR GREETER

To the victor will go the honor of welcoming world dignitaries at the International Exposition here in 1933.

Compared to the Republican primary, in which Thompson used burros and donkeys to characterize his opponents, and Judge John H. Lyle made his address with a submachine gun in hand, the Thompson-Cermak contest has been lacking in sensation.

The campaign was marked by a breaking of party fences all along the line and by a complexity of appeals in which nationality, sex, crime, "efficiency" and a dozen other factors played a part.

CERMAK URGES CHANGE

Cermak ran on a "reform" platform, urging all citizens to heed his slogan, "Chicago Needs a Change."

Thompson charged "Tony" with plotting to establish political dictatorship over Chicago and the state. Cermak, he asserted, is the tool of organized wealth, whereas he, Thompson, is the defender of the workingman.

EVIL CURBED, REPPERT INSISTS

Ex-Controller, Engineer Clash Over Lumber Used On Street Paving Contract

Of $312 outlay for new and re-used lumber at a typical intersection on the Lincoln avenue improvement, the city of Pittsburgh paid $264 for merely lifting it from one place to another, it was charged today at City Council's public investigation of charges of inefficiency in the Department of Public Works.

This accusation hurled by Attorney Henry Oliver Evans, the department's accuser, brought from Chief Engineer Charles M. Reppert an assertion that he had made recommendations to change lumber specifications in city contracts.

Reppert said:

"I have made recommendations to change the lumber specifications. I want to get off this lumber argument the same as Council does. I am tired talking about it."

Reppert was called to the stand by Attorney Lee C. Beatty, counsel for Director Edward G. Lang, over the objections of President John S. Herron. Reppert, it was brought out, has been ill. Herron cautioned him not to "get excited" as Reppert replied:

"I'm not getting excited. I want to say there is no chance for fraud in this lumber. You can't protect a pedestrian by any other method but ties at crossings. If Council wants to pass a resolution cutting this method out and to make the streets unsafe, it is all right with me."

LUMBER BUYING

According to Attorney Evans the first operation to which he referred was the purchase of 800 feet of "new" lumber—consisting largely of old railroad ties for which the city paid for but two of the eight inches of their thickness and classified as "new" lumber—at a price of $48.

The second was the purchase of 800 feet of used lumber, the same lumber as above, for $24, and

Sweep Winner Fails To Collect $1,500,000

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, April 7.—(AP.)—Emilio Scala, London cafe owner, who won first prize in the grand national sweepstakes, appeared today to claim his money—more than $1,500,000—but was balked by a legal injunction.

He and his counsel conferred at length with sweepstakes officials, but declined to disclose his plans for combatting those who have held up payment on the award on the ground they bought a share of his ticket.

ANTI-BLUE LAW BILL PUT AHEAD

HARRISBURG, April 7.—The House today voted to make the bill of Representative Schwartz to amend the blue law of 1794 a special order of business for next Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The vote was 65 to 40.

Schwartz's bill permits the delivery of milk on Sunday until 10 o'clock instead of 9. It is expected that the sponsor of the bill will endeavor to have amendments made to permit Sunday amusements. An unsuccessful effort was made two weeks ago to send this bill back to committee.

A referendum on Sunday baseball is proposed in a bill of Representative Denning, of Philadelphia, introduced today in the House. The vote would be taken by counties at the municipal election this year. Representative Fish, of Philadelphia, sponsored a bill to legalize Sunday baseball during May, June, July, August and September.

Bill Proposes State Dry Law Referendum

HARRISBURG, April 7.—Representative Dunn, Allegheny, today sponsored a House bill for a state referendum on prohibition. The bill provides that the vote be taken at the first general or municipal election at least three months after approval.

Nixon-Nirdlinger's Widow to Quit Jail

NICE, France, April 7.—(AP.)—Magistrate Vachier said today that Mrs. Charlotte Nixon-Nirdlinger, of St. Louis, Mo., will be temporarily released within five days on the charge of slaying Fred Nixon-Nirdlinger, Philadelphia theater owner.

FATHER AND 7 DIE IN FIRE

GALLIPOLIS, O., April 7.—(AP.)—A father and seven children were burned to death early today when fire destroyed their log-cabin home on Swan Creek, 10 miles from here. The father was James White, 59.

The cabin, on the banks of the Ohio River, burned quickly, and the victims had no opportunity to escape. In addition to White, the dead are: Mary, 20; James, 18; John, 14; Ira, 9; Mae, 5, and twin daughters, Nora and Dora, 3.

A son, George, 12, although seriously burned, succeeded in reaching a nearby cabin and sounded an alarm. Neighbors rushed to the scene, but when they arrived the tinder-like log cabin was an inferno, and they could do nothing to effect a rescue.

1,000 Uninvited Nobles To See Prince Wed

PALERMO, Italy, April 7.—(AP.)—Uninvited, 1,000 aristocratic and noble guests were gathered here today from all Europe to attend tomorrow's wedding of Prince Henri, Count of Paris, heir to the supposed French throne, and Princess Isabelle Marie D'Orleans and Bragance, descended from the royal houses of France and Brazil.

All hotels are filled. The bride and her parents are at the Hotel Des Palmes, while the bridegroom and his parents, the Duke and Duchess of Guise, are remaining at the Villa D'Aumale, ancient residence of pretenders to the French throne. The wedding will take place in the chapel of the villa.

More than half of those assembled come from countries where royalty has given way to democracy. Princes, princesses, dukes and duchesses, of France, Greece, Portugal and Brazil, who still possess ancestral estates and titles, but have no royal court in which to blossom and bloom, mingled with their more fortunate contemporaries of Spain, Denmark, Rumania and Italy.

Guests will attend a dinner tonight in the Villa D'Aumale.

Wife Dying After Fall, Acrobat Carries On

LOS ANGELES, April 7.—(AP.)—True to circus tradition, Alex Acezvo carried on with his aerial acrobatic act last night while his wife, Auroria, 30, lay near death from a plunge to earth a few hours before.

Acezvo, aided by others, pulled his wife to the top of the Al G. Barnes tent yesterday. She and three others, suspended only by rubber mouthpieces clamped between their teeth, began to spin rapidly in a "butterfly" act. Suddenly, as hundreds gasped in horror, Mrs. Acezvo dropped. Her husband ran forward to break her fall with his body, but she crashed limp at his feet.

Acezvo walked across a slack wire high above the ground in perfect balance at the night performance. Mrs. Acezvo was still unconscious at the Hollywood Police Emergency Hospital early today. Attendants said her skull and pelvis apparently had been fractured.

It had not been determined whether she lost her grip or a swivel broke.

PROHIBITION HELD SHAM ISSUE

Senator Norris, Who Backed Smith, Insists Economic Policies Rule Campaign

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Senator George W. Norris, veteran insurgent leader of the Senate, who bolted his party in 1928 to support Alfred E. Smith on economic issues, today joined with dry Democrats in opposing the effort of John J. Raskob to force the Democratic party into an open stand on the wet side of the prohibition issue.

Norris, who makes no secret of his opposition to the policies of President Hoover, sharply criticized Raskob's political maneuvers. He assailed the Raskob plan as an effort to eliminate all economic issues between the two major parties in the next campaign, and to force them into a "sham battle" on the prohibition issue.

VIEWS IMPORTANT

While Norris has no voice in the deliberations of the Democratic party, his views attracted interest because of his leadership in the Progressive movement, and his fight for the election of Smith in 1928. At the recent Progressive conference, he revealed opposition to President Hoover's re-election and appealed for the nomination by the Democrats of "another Roosevelt," although he did not indorse Franklin D. Roosevelt, New York's Democratic governor.

Norris was asked:

"Do you think the Democrats can win on the wet issue?"

He replied:

"I have no idea as to that. But one thing is certain. That can't repeal the Eighteenth Amendment — not in our lifetime. But Raskob wants them to make the fight on that issue. I think it is foolish. The whole scheme is to put the people to sleep on the important economic issues and have a sham battle over prohibition, because even if the wets win, it won't amend the Constitution nor change the prohibition law.

REAL ISSUES CITED

"The real issues are taxation, unemployment, agricultural depression, the power question. These are the big issues, together with the growing tendency to monopolists and combinations in restraint of trade.

Where will that leave the Progressives?"

"I don't know."

Meanwhile Democrats in Congress from the North, South, East and West condemned, publicly and privately the agitation by Chairman Raskob of prohibition as the paramount issue in 1932.

There was a general feeling among the Congressional Democrats that the party would throw away its chances of victory next year if the convention adopts an outright repeal plank in the platform.

BROWN DISPELS DOUBTS ABOUT HOOVER, '32

Statement Taken as Certain Indication President Will Seek Renomination

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—If there ever had been the slightest doubt of President Hoover's being a candidate to succeed himself next year, it was effectually dispelled today by the statement of Postmaster General Walter F. Brown that Mr. Hoover will be nominated by acclamation in the Republican convention of '32.

Brown is not only a member of the cabinet, but is also accounted to be Mr. Hoover's political chief-of-staff. Presumably, he speaks for Mr. Hoover in things political. In any event, it isn't likely he would make such a statement if he felt it would be repudiated.

RUMBLINGS IN SOUTH

For some time there have been ominous rumblings in the South. Disgruntled Republicans in southern states who followed the leadership of Col. Horace Mann in carrying four states of the Solid South for Hoover in 1928, only to find themselves later left outside the patronage breastworks, have been threatening to bolt. Mann has declared the southern delegates to the 1932 convention would go uninstructed.

Brown slipped out of Washington some days ago to find out just what all this rumbling was about. After visiting half a dozen states in the South and Southeast, he returned to Washington today with the tidings that it was all a bluff, that the southern Republicans are standing loyally behind President Hoover.

"NO OPPOSITION"

Brown said:

"There will be no opposition to Mr. Hoover in the convention worthy of a name. I predict he will be renominated by acclamation."

Brown himself is credited with an ambition to succeed Charles Curtis on the ticket as Vice President. In his behalf it has been urged that he comes from Ohio, an important and so-called pivotal state, which the Republicans must carry in 1932 if they are successful. Few presidents are elected without carrying Ohio. And it is not forgotten in Republican councils that it was in Ohio last November that the Republicans suffered one of their worst lickings.

If Brown doesn't gain the vice presidential nomination, the general expectation in Washington is that he will become chairman of the Republican National Committee and direct Mr. Hoover's campaign. Senator Fess, the present chairman, is merely staying on until conditions are considered propitious for a change.

SHOAL VETO AIDS TRUST —WHEELER

President Hoover's Policy Hit By Senator, Who Says Bill Will Pass Over His Head

Universal Service.

TOLEDO, O., April 7.—Declaring President Hoover gave "one more indication of his friendship for the power trust" by vetoing the Norris Muscle Shoals bill, Senator Wheeler (Dem.), of Montana, in a speech here last night predicted the measure would be passed over a veto by the next Congress.

Speaking before the National League of Women Voters, the Montanan cited the dismissal of Charles A. Russell, former solicitor of the Federal Power Commission, after he had fought the power interests, as another indication of the attitude of the President and members of his cabinet on the power issue. Wheeler added:

"To me the discharge of Russell was one of the most shameless abuses of power ever exhibited by a body of men since the exit from public life of the Daugherty-Jess Smith gang that infested the capital during the Harding administration.

"I do not believe the people of this country are going to approve the action of President Hoover in appointing men as members of the power commission whose first act was to dismiss from the commission the man who had dared to fight the power interests in behalf of a square deal for both sides."

Citing the low cost of power from the government-owned plants in Ontario, Canada, Wheeler said there is no reason why this government could not make the same success in the operation of Muscle Shoals.

NEW PANTAGES TRIAL ASSURED

LOS ANGELES, April 7.—(AP.)—Eunice Pringle, 18-year-old dancer, has announced her willingness to re-appear as prosecuting witness against Alexander Pantages, wealthy theater magnate who was convicted last year of attacking her.

Originally sentenced to serve 1 to 50 years in prison, Pantages appealed. The Supreme Court reversed the judgment and ordered a retrial. District Attorney Buron Fitts announced yesterday he intended to bring Pantages to trial again.

The defense may introduce testimony concerning Miss Pringle's character prior to the day in August, 1929, when she ran screaming from Pantage's office. The Supreme Court decision criticised the trial judge for refusing to allow the introduction of such testimony.

SHOUSE DENIES BOOMING YOUNG

LOS ANGELES, April 7.—(Universal.)—Jouett Shouse, chairman of the executive committee of the Democratic National Committee, has denied that he is promoting the interests of any man as candidate for the nomination for president.

This disclaimer had to do especially with the grave concern expressed by western Democrats that such purpose might be involved in the coming western tour of Shouse and his presence in Los Angeles during the three-day conference that will be held here April 13-15.

Monroe Butler, Democratic County Committee chairman, gave out the following statement last night as having been authorized by Shouse by telegraph from Washington:

"The chairman of the Democratic executive committee has been guilty of no activities in behalf of Owen D. Young, or any other candidate. It should be obvious that the very nature of his office forbids his working for or against any candidate for the presidential nomination."

ADVOCATES JOB INSURANCE

Maynard Krueger, instructor in economics at the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce, University of Pennsylvania, advocated unemployment insurance at a meeting held in Taylor Allderdice High School, Shady avenue, last night, under the auspices of the local Socialist party.

Krueger classed the Pittsburgh plan for the stabilization of employment as grossly inefficient, declaring that it is an old problem and citing a situation, similar to this country's present predicament, which existed in France 100 years ago.

Asserting that all efforts now being made to improve the unemployment situation here will do nothing towards effecting a permanent remedy, Krueger says this will be accomplished only by "planned economy." He would create a system based on designs other than those of profit.

will ever solve the problem of unemployment. The solution is to give new employment.

Twenty auditors, members of the senior class of the Pittsburgh School of Accountancy, who volunteered their services, will be on duty daily from 11:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. handling reports. Luncheon meetings of the workers will be held daily, excepting Saturday and Sunday, until the end of the drive, April 20.

Gatherings scheduled for today to be addressed by association speakers include several plant meetings. Attorney William Oliver Bollinger was to talk at a meeting of Standard Oil employes at noon at Thirty-fourth and Smallman streets, and L. B. Harnish, of the Chamber of Commerce, was to speak at a meeting of the Ruud Manufacturing Company, at 12:30 p. m., at Twenty-ninth and Smallman street. Harnish also was to address the Pittsburgh Coal Company employes at 2:30 p. m., in the Oliver Building.

PLAYLET ON RADIO

The second of two playlets on the Pittsburgh Plan will be given this evening at 8:30 o'clock by the KDKA Players. The 15-minute sketch will show the woman's side of the operation of the plan. In addition to the play there will be periodic reminders made by the KDKA announces throughout the day.

Work for 1,500 men for two to four months is provided for in two appropriation measures for $100,000 each, passed finally by City Council yesterday as its contribution to the Emergency Association's campaign.

One of the items is an emergency fund of $100,000 which will be sent direct to Mayor Kline for his signature. The other provides for the sale of bonds for $100,000, at 4¼ per cent interest. The money is in line with the policy of the association and the city in working out improvement projects under supervision of the Department of Public Works.

'ANTI-RACKET' POLICY ISSUED

LONDON, April 7.—(INS.)—British insurance underwriters are issuing anti-racketeering policies to safeguard American firms against attacks by gangsters, it was revealed today. The first racketeering insurance policy was issued to a New York electrical company, which had received an underground warning of sabotage.

This latest insurance innovation is proof of the thruthfulness of the boast of English underwriters that they are willing to insure almost anything from a signet ring to a battleship. An underwriter said:

"The other day we agreed to insure a young man who feared he might be disinherited under a will.

"But we have discontinued effecting insurance on actresses' jewels. We discovered they were not worth underwriting."

WALKER IN RACE WITH PROBERS

NEW YORK, April 7.—(AP.)—Mayor Walker, drafting a formal defense of his administration, today found himself engaged in a race with the committee of the Legislature which will investigate conditions in New York.

Although the Legislature voted the inquiry several weeks ago, the members are yet to be appointed. Newspapers have forecast that State Senator Samuel H. Hofstadter, a Republican, of New York City, will be chairman.

When the Mayor left City Hall after dark yesterday he had conferred with a number of departmental chiefs and examined a mass of material which will be incorporated in his answer to the charges filed against him with Gov. Roosevelt. Seven of the Mayor's lieutenants in city affairs have been summoned for conferences.

Wife Identifies Suicide As Missing Editor

YUMA, Ariz., April 7.—(AP.)—Mrs Hutton Bellah, of Los Angeles, today identified the body of a man known here as William A. Lee, publisher-editor of the Yuma Sentinel, as that of her missing husband, Hutton Bellah, former Altus (Okla.) newspaper publisher, who disappeared more than a year ago from Los Angeles.

Bellah committed suicide with a bullet through his brain yesterday.

Mrs. Bellah revealed an investigation of the man known as Lee had been going on here for about a week, although yesterday was the first she knew of it. She said:

"Mr. Harry Wimberly, business associate of Mr. Bellah at Altus, Okla., had a friend checking up on my husband. I guess he realized he had been discovered, and decided suicide was the only way out. This is the first I have seen of him since he left me 15 months ago."

Since leaving his wife Bellah had remarried under the name of Lee. His second wife was in the front room of their home here when Lee, rummaging in a trunk in an adjoining room, found a revolver and killed himself.

OALAHOMA CITY, April 7.—(AP.)—Hutton Bellah, whose strange disappearance was solved in his suicide in Arizona, where he published the Yuma Sentinel under the name of William A. Lee, left Oklahoma in 1929 at the height of a promising career as a newspaper man.

He sold his interest in the Altus (Okla.) Times-Democrat in the summer of 1929, and moved with his wife and child to Los Angeles, where a second child was born. A few months later, during Wall Street's black days, he vanished.

When the stock market crash came in the fall of 1929, Bellah was known to have been hit hard.

Bellah was a close friend of Lew Wentz, former Pittsburgher and multi-millionaire oil man, of Ponca City, Okla. Before he shot himself at Yuma yesterday Bellah left a note asking that Wentz be notified.

Fishing Season Brings Memories to Coolidge

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., April 7.

To the Editor of The Sun-Telegraph:

Now that the fields are growing green again the thoughts of many will be turned to the flowing streams. At heart we are all fishermen. Some of us never had a chance to practice the art. Some have known it only through the use of expensive rods and fancy tackle, on elaborate artificial preserves. But the real fishermen associate the sport with a barefooted boyhood where pole, bait, stream and the alder branch on which the fish were strung were all the product of nature. Only the hook and line were commercial.

Mr. Coolidge

With the bending rod and sparkling water such men can redeem the joy and peace of their youth. But those to whom the pleasure of such memories is forever closed cannot fail to find a lure and charm in the gentle art. The open country, the unhurried silence, the refreshing leisure are a stimulation to the body and a benediction to the soul.

Even the imagination expands and the credulity is disciplined in telling and listening to adventures with rod and reel. There is something natural, homely, wholesome and unspoiled about fishermen which we shall all do well to cultivate.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

CLERIC MAY FACE CHARGE OF MURDER

Awaits Action in Slaying of Evangelist During Row Over Easter Services

NEVADA, Mo., April 7.—(AP.)—The Rev. J. A. Brown, former blacksmith, claimed spiritual solace today as he awaited the filing of charges against him for the slaying of the Rev. George Rider, 43-year-old evangelist, asserting he shot in self-defense. The elderly minister said:

"I stand for acquittal before God."

A coroner's jury found that the evangelist, fatally wounded at the minister's home Saturday, came to his death at Brown's hands. Webster Hallett, prosecuting attorney, said Brown would be tried on charges of first-degree murder.

Witnesses testified that Brown, former pastor at a little log church at Halley's Bluffs, had rejected an invitation from Rider to conduct Easter services at the church and that their discussion led to blows. Brown charged Rider had threatened to take away his license to preach.

The widow of the evangelist said Brown told her husband:

"Get out, you've been lying about me."

Rider was shot, she said, as he stepped from the door.

Members of the congregation said Brown resigned after a dispute about his right to serve in other country pulpits nearby to supplement his earnings, ranging from $4.15 to $9.15 a month, at Halley's Bluffs.

A son of the accused man, Clyde M. Brown, of Kansas City, said his father had been "queer at times" since he was kicked by a mule 25 years ago.

HIGH COURT FIGHT NOT LIKELY

Former Interior Secretary Uncertain as to Plans, But May Drop Contest

THREE RIVERS, N. M., April 7.—(AP.)—Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, was debating today the advisability of appealing from a decision of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals affirming his conviction of taking a bribe in the California naval oil lease transaction with Edward L. Doheny.

Mr. Fall said it was "remotely possible," but not probable, he would appeal to the Supreme Court. He said his decision would wait until he received a copy of the court's action. He awaited it at his Tres Rios ranch home.

SENTENCE UPHELD

The Appellate Court upheld the sentence of one-year imprisonment and $100,000 fine against Fall, who served in the cabinet of President Harding. Fall said:

"I am a poor man and I have no money for further legal defense. Certainly I cannot pay the heavy fine.

"I am an old man, and for the last eight years I have known little but trouble. In many respects, the decision is a welcome relief, for the weight of suspense has been heavy."

He recalled that the ranch he once attempted to buy from Doheny was not his own. He said:

"It is rented and my only income is from a small herd of beef cattle, and my wife sells some butter and milk in El Paso.

"I am not guilty, and the great masses of people who put me in positions of trust long before I became Secretary of the Interior do not believe me guilty."

BLACKMER TO APPEAL

DENVER, April 7.—The Supreme Court of the United States will be asked to rule on the decision of the District of Columbia Court upholding Harry M. Blackmer's conviction of contempt of court. This was announced here by the Denver oil man's attorney, Karl C. Schuyler, who said:

"We will have an appeal to the highest court in the land perfected within the 90 days allower. A final decision should be rendered by the high court by next October."

PHYSICIANS CALLED TO RULER

Monarch Suffers Attack of Acute Bronchitis, But Is Not Confined to Bed

WINDSOR, England, April 7.—(AP.)—England got something of a shock at noon today when it was learned through the issuance of an official statement that King George V, whom the country believed was only suffering from a slight cold, actually was a victim of bronchitis.

The King's medical advisers, it is learned, believe His Majesty caught cold while motoring from Buckingham Palace to Windsor last Thursday. A cold easterly wind was blowing and the window of the royal car was open during a considerable part of the journey.

ACUTE ATTACK

The statement said the attack was of a "sub-acute" nature, and that the patient was progressing satisfactorily, though slowly.

The statement brought sharply home to the nation, however, that it is barely two years ago since the monarch was hovering between life and death from a chest disorder which originated in a cold caught on Armistice Day, 1928. The King's health has been a matter of keen public interest ever since his recovery the following spring.

The national dismay that he was again in need of doctors' care was tempered by the reassuring statement of satisfactory progress, which was accompanied by the announcement that the King was not even confined to his bed.

SPECIALIST CALLED

Lord Dawson, of Penn, the King's physician, visited him during the week-end and motored to Windsor again today. Sir Milsom Rees, laryngologist to the royal household, has also seen the King, in addition to Dr. Henry Martin, who is in residence at Windsor Castle.

The King has been confined to his room since Friday, although his indisposition was not made public until Sunday.

No further statement on the King's condition is expected today, but it is probable there will be one tomorrow morning.

There are no guests at the castle except immediate members of the family. The Duke of Gloucester is there and Princess Mary is expected tomorrow.

NORMAN DINES WITH MELLON

WASHINGTON, April 7.—(INS.)—Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, expected to terminate his visit to Washington tonight, following a series of conferences with American officials, which included a meeting today with President Hoover.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon entertained at luncheon for the British financial chief, with Eugene Meyer, governor of the Federal Reserve Board, the British Ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay; George L. Harrison, governor of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, and other high officials present.

Officials here said that the conferences with Norman would prove helpful in bringing about a better mutual understanding of financial affairs of the two countries.

DEATH RISKED BY 'GIN SLAYER'

VALPARAISO, Ind., April 7.—(INS.)—Although the threat of the electric chair again looms before him, Virgil Kirkland, convicted of the murder of Arlene Draves during a gin-drinking party, was happy today.

He and his family regard as a forerunner of ultimate victory the ruling yesterday permitting the high school athlete another trial on the charge for which he now is under a sentence of life imprisonment.

The new trial is set for April 29. The same technicality which gives the youth another chance to prove his innocence forces him into a desperate gamble—liberty or death in the electric chair, with no alternative of life imprisonment.

After Judge Grant Crumpacker made his ruling, Prosecutor John Underwood announced the state would nolle prosse the first two counts of the indictment. He said Kirkland would go on trial on the third and fourth counts, both of which charge murder during an attack and carry a mandatory death penalty.

CITE DECLINE IN CLERGY

ATLANTA, Ga., April 7.—(AP.)—The committee on plans for changing pastorates of the Southern Presbyterian Church will send a majority report to the seventy-first general assembly of the church at Montreat, N. C., in May, which will say that "restlessness" within the pastorate and the churches has produced "an intolerable state of affairs."

Spiritual qualifications are overlooked by many churchmen when they go looking for a new pastor, and they demand a man who is "young," "a go-getter," a "trash-mover," a "humdinger," the committee declared. The report concludes:

"There are multitudes of vacant churches disintegrating from lack of pastoral care, and as many 'unemployed' ministers starving for support. There is absolutely no constituted means of bringing pastor and church together."

Airplane Safety Bills Introduced

ALBANY, N. Y., April 7.—(INS)—As a direct result of Knute Rockne's death, two bills dealing with the safety of airplane passengers faced the New York State Legislature today.

Buckley Case Goes Into Seventh Week

DETROIT, April 7.—(INS.)—Michigan's $500,000 court drama—the trial of Ted Pizzino, Angelo Livecchi and Joe Bommarito, three alleged gangsters, for the first degree murder of Gerald Buckley, radio idol—entered its seventh and perhaps its final week today. Judge Edward J. Jeffries again warned both defense and prosecution attorneys that "proceedings must be speeded up."

Quakers Lift Ban On Smoking, Frills

NEW YORK, April 7.—(INS.)—Quakers' maids may wear frills and laces and the men may smoke under an amended "book of discipline" announced today at the yearly meeting of the Society of Friends. The amended rules were adopted for the first time in 38 years.

At a meeting of the Friends last night, Dr. D. Leigh Colvin, chairman of the Prohibition National Committee, said prohibition had been a tremendous factor in promoting prosperity, because it had diverted the earnings of the workingmen into legitimate channels, and had made workers more efficient.

Russell, 20, said today he believed his daughter was murdered in Massachusetts, where the death penalty is inflicted, and not in Rhode Island where Elliott R. ## POLICE HONOR COMRADE

Hundreds of friends and brother policemen paid their respects to Patrolman Frank Kiedrowski today. Requiem high mass was held in the St. Adelbert's Roman Catholic Church, South Fifteenth street. The services were in charge of Mgr. John Gorzynski.

He died in his uniform as he was ready to report for work at the South Side Police Station. He was ready to walk his Carson street beat, as he had done in the past 28 years, when he collapsed. He was a friend and guardian of the students attending South High School, South Tenth and Carson streets.

A police escort of 17 patrolmen of the fifth police district, under command of Lieut. John Vandell, escorted the body from the home to the church. The bearers were Patrolmen John Tynan, William Barrett, John Flaherty, John Dolan, Andrew Haid and James Clarey. A police motorcycle detachment escorted the funeral procession to the St. Adelbert's Cemetery, Carrick.

New Air Safety Device Developed, Tested Here

Pittsburgh has developed another device to make flying safer. It is an electric pulse, brought about primarily to measure shock and stress on railroad equipment, but within the past couple of weeks adapted by Westinghouse research engineers to the airplane. Tests were conducted yesterday at Bettis Airport, by Bud Baker, airmail pilot for the Pennsylvania Air Lines, carriers of the mail between Pittsburgh and Cleveland.

The device, first developed at Westinghouse several years ago, employs a number of Knowles grid glow tubes which light to varying degrees of luminosity according to the stress or strain.

A registering attachment, regulated to the type of ship or amount of normal shock in average flying conditions, is attached to the wing tips. It is connected by wires to the grid glow tubes in the pilot's cockpit and when danger arises the pilot gets his warning from the lights.

Cliff Ball, president of Pennsylvania Air Lines, commenting on the device, declared:

"I am sure something of real value to aviation will come from these experiments and we in the aviation business look forward to science to help us with our flying problems."

Whitehead Picks Army Men As Best Bridge Players

Newspapermen are the worst bridge players, and army men are the best, according to Wilbur C. Whitehead, bridge expert, here to lecture before the Concordia Club and the Pittsburgh Bridge Club today and tomorrow.

Mr. Whitehead took time off from proof-reading of his latest book, "What and Why of Contract," to maintain that bridge will never die as a national pastime.

He has to be shown "some of these 13 one-suit hands that have appeared in the public press of late."

Mr. Whitehead said:

"The probability of holding 13 cards of one suit in your hand in bridge is about one chance in two billion. I've never seen it done, and I have never encountered anyone who has seen it."

He explained that after a day's work at cards his mind is so filled with figures and "spots" that he cannot sleep until he reads a detective story or a western thriller.

"When you live cards, you have to have a different problem to drive the card problems out of your mind."

Mr. Whitehead believes that bridge will be improved upon and that innovations will occur, but the game will remain essentially as it is.

REDISTRICTING BILL OFFERED IN ASSEMBLY

Allegheny Gains One Member Under Measure Sponsored By Elections Association

HARRISBURG, April 7.—(AP.)—A bill providing for the redistricting of Pennsylvania for state representative purposes was introduced in the Legislature today at the instance of the Pennsylvania Elections Association.

A feature of the measure is that it would give the outlying sections of Philadelphia and Allegheny County the greatly increased relative strength in their House delegations to which they are entitled by gains of population.

DRAFTED BY MARIS

The bill, like the senatorial apportionment measure introduced last week by Senator Harris, Allegheny, was drafted by Albert B. Maris, member of the Philadelphia Bar, to comply with the constitutional mandate for reapportionment after each decennial census. It would give to each of the 67 counties the proportionate representation it should have on the basis of the 1930 census figures.

Under Article II Section 17, of the state constitution the ratio of representation in the state House of Representatives is determined by dividing the population of the state by 200. Under the 1930 census, this gives a ratio of 48,157, which, when applied to the population of the various counties in accordance with the rules laid down by the constitution, calls for a House of 209 members, an increase of one over the present number. The change arises from the fact that four counties, Allegheny, Delaware, Luzerne and Lehigh, each gain one member, while three counties, Cambria, Dauphin and Philadelphia, lose a member each and all the other counties retain their present membership.

ACTUAL APPORTIONMENT

The actual apportionment required by the 1930 census figures is as follows:

Forty members, Philadelphia.

Nine members, Luzerne.

Mrs. Sarah Drennan, 61, of 312 West Fifteenth street, Homestead, was seriously burned today when her dress caught fire while she was standing in front of an open gas heater at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Margaret Austin, in West Elizabeth. She is in McKeesport Hospital.

ROCKNE FUND GIFTS START

SOUTH BEND, Ind., April 7.—(INS.)—Numerous contributions already are pouring in from all parts of the country for the building of an appropriate memorial to Knute Rockne, the Rev. Charles L. O'Donnell, president of Notre Dame University, announced today.

A committee composed of Notre Dame alumni and friends of the famous coach, nation-wide in its scope, will make recommendation as to the form of the memorial. Frank E. Hering, captain of the 1896 Irish eleven, national president of the Notre Dame Alumni Association, and James E. Armstrong, national secretary, conferred with Father O'Donnell yesterday concerning the project.

Rockne's will, drawn March 4, 1928, will be filed in probate court today. The will leaves his entire estate to Mrs. Rockne and their four children. Its value will not be determined until inventory is taken later.

MANAGER BILL PASSAGE URGED

By ED PRENDERGAST
Staff Correspondent.

HARRISBURG, April 7.—A flood of letters, telephone calls and telegrams to D. Glenn Moore, sponsor of the city manager bill for Pittsburgh, continued today to demand that the bill be brought out of committee and passed through the Legislature.

Civic, fraternal and other groups have joined in the demand not only to Moore but to other members of the House and Senate to support the measure.

Moore said today he had not received one protest against the bill.

PINCHOT ASKED FOR AUTO DATA

HARRISBURG, April 7.—A resolution calling on Gov. Pinchot to furnish the General Assembly with data on which he based his campaign declarations of last year when he favored a reduction in automobile and drivers' fees was introduced in the House today by Representative Sarig, of Berks. The resolution also asks that the Governor "state clearly and explicitly whether he still favors the tax reductions" he urged in the 1930 campaign.

Sarig's resolution charges the administration with endeavoring to "pass the buck" to the Legislature in the matter of reducing highway revenues.

An unsuccessful effort was made today in the House to recommit the administration's bill to borrow $10,000,000 from the general fund to finance road construction. The vote was 50 to 63 against sending the bill back to committee. The bill provides a loan which will be repaid from the motor fund. It will come up for final passage tomorrow.

M'Devitt Asks Copy Of Cab Testimony

PHILADELPHIA, April 7.—(AP.)—Judge Harry S. McDevitt, of Common Pleas Court No. 1, has telegraphed C. Jay Goodnough, speaker of the state House of Representatives, at Harrisburg, and Senator Augustus F. Daix, Jr., president pro tem of the Senate, a request for transcripts of the testimony given before the House and Senate committees investigating the Public Service Commission and the utilities, with reference to the purchase of the Quaker City Cab Company, by the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company.

ciled, there will be two Democratic parties.

TODAY THEY vote in Chicago. Yesterday the "pay wagons" went around with money to reward patriots for "manning the polls." Tony Cermak's representatives are alleged to have boasted that they had a dime for every nickel that Mayor Thompson could spend.

Each candidate accused the other of preparing to stuff ballot boxes and of planning to steal the election.

On Thursday morning Chicago will be going along as usual. And, no matter who wins, Chicago will continue to improve parks, develop the lake front and build up the fine world's fair.

BAINBRIDGE COLBY tells the public via WJZ:

"A civilization that will suffer crime to pass unpunished and view without agitation the evidence of a working alliance between crime and the forces for crime repression must alter its ways quickly if it is to be saved."

True, but what can you do about it?

Bootleg profits run into billions a year. Racketeering is a branch of the crime wave also highly profitable.

The total annual income of organized crime is said to be close to $20,000,000,000, many times what it costs to run the United States government.

With such resources some "forces for crime repression" can be bought.

FOES OF ROONEY BILL HEARD AT CAPITAL

Pittsburgh Groups Uphold Appointive School Board Over Elective System

HARRISBURG, April 7.—Thirteen organizations with civic and political and educational objectives sent representatives to the public hearing on the Rooney and Root bills held here today.

Senator Frank J. Harris and Louis Hagamier, of Aspinwall, served as presiding officers. Members of the education committee of House and Senate listened to complaints against the two bills, which, if enacted, would make the school boards of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia elective.

DUNN PRESENT

Thomas A. Dunn, Dr. S. B. Linhart and Marcus Rauh, of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce; M. R. Scharff, of the Civic Club, and a score of others joined the protesting army.

Because Representative James Rooney announced that the bill had been dropped by him, the complaints took the form of contentions that the appointive Board of Public Education has proved much more successful than the elective system.

Mr. Dunn, chairman of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce delegation, declared:

"In behalf of the 6,000 members of the Chamber of Commerce of Pittsburgh, I ask the gentlemen of this committee to ignore both the Rooney and Root bills.

"The passage of either one of these bills would automatically bring to an end the present system of appointing school directors by court, which has been in effect in Pittsburgh for the last 20 years, and place our board of education back in the grasp of politicians.

DISASTROUS BLOW

"This gentlemen, I assure you, would be the most disastrous blow ever struck at the educational system in the city of Pittsburgh. Once we had an elective system in Pittsburgh. Under it, the schools of our city were in a deplorable condition. Politicians ruled our school system, and as a result the educational records of one of the most important cities in the nation were disgracefully low.

"Since 1911, when public indignation brought to an end the elective system by an act of Assembly, Pittsburgh schools have been under the management of competent educators and men of high character appointed by the court. Today the schools of our city stand pre-eminent from an educational stanpoint, rating among the best systems in the country.

"We of Pittsburgh who have carefully and thoroughly analyzed or anticipated the future of an elective school board feel that the school system of Pittsburgh, if turned over to the practical politicians of today, would be ruined. There are 110,000 children whose education must be given careful consideration. And we have 3,600 highly trained and efficient teachers and 1,400 other employes, whose jobs should not be made the pawns of scheming politicians."

OTHERS PRESENT

Others in the Pittsburgh delegation included John H. Adams, chairman legislative committee, Pennsylvania State Educational Association; Adaline Van Kirk, president, and John D. Beatty, secretary, Pittsburgh Personnel Association; Mrs. Stuart L. Henderson, Allegheny County League of Women Voters; Miss Elizabeth M. Wolf, president, Principals' Club; Miss Grace Swan, president, Administrative Women in Education; Mrs. C. A. Rehtmeyer, president, Pittsburgh Chapter, Parent-Teachers' Association; Mrs. W. M. Parrish, American Association University Women; Harry Bastow, president, Allied Boards of Trade, and Arthur M. Scully, Allegheny County Bar Association.

Senate Holds Up Healing Arts Bills

HARRISBURG, April 7.—(AP.)—The four bills introduced in the Senate by Senator Bell, Fayette, to create a board of healing arts to take over duties now performed by the several medical examining and licensing boards, have been indefinitely postponed.

The bills were sponsored by and introduced at the instigation of the State Medical Association. They were opposed by the Nurses Association, chiropractors, osteopaths and other branches of the healing arts except dentists, veterinarians and pharmacists, who were not included in the provisions of the bills.

Proposes State Tax For Gas Companies

HARRISBURG, April 7.—A bill to include natural gas companies in the group of corporations paying the annual gross receipts tax was introduced in the House today by Represetative Mathai, of Philadelphia. These companies are now exempted.

Representative Williams, of Tioga, sponsored a bill to impose a gross receipts tax of 8 mills on the income of motor bus companies.

Runaway Girl Found Exhausted

PHILADELPHIA, April 7.—(AP.)—Patsey Pilsitz, 18, of Steelton, was recovering in a hospital here today after collapsing on the Parkway last night from hunger and exhaustion.

The girl told police she had walked and "hitch hiked" here, with only one meal on the way, after a quarrel with her family last Sunday.

Evans Renews 'Waste' Attack

1,600 feet of new lumber at a cost of $96, a total of $120.

Twenty-four hundred feet of used lumber, bought at $72, was used in the third operation. The fourth operation described by Evans was the purchase of 800 feet of used lumber, still the same as in the first operation—at a price of $24 and finally the purchase of 800 feet of new lumber for $48, making a total of $312 for the five operations.

Evans declared of this amount $264 had been paid for simply picking it up and putting it in place again as the improvement progressed.

Attorney Beatty, objecting on the ground that the city was paying for a platform in place, said that it was much argument, but no evidence. President John S. Herron ruled that Attorney Evans may introduce this statement, and directed Attorney Beatty to file an answer.

ENGINEER EXPLAINS

Preceding the introduction of this evidence Engineer Ross Riegel was questioned as to how many board feet of lumber was involved in taking up street intersections at each operation. Referring to figures furnished yesterday by Marshall, Riegel said that the witness probably accounted for more lumber than was actually used.

Attorney Evans, discussing the cost of moving lumber from one intersection to another, spoke of the testimony of John J. Ryan, one of the Lincoln avenue contractors, that some salvage lumber had been used there. He was interrupted by Councilman Robert J. Alderdice, who asked:

"Mr. Evans, would you claim the lumber for scaffolding that was used in building a house?"

Evans' reply was:

"Oh, no."

Replying to Attorney Evans, Beatty said:

"The contracor is required to give a unit price on the contract. This contract called for the construction of crossings of lumber, and when the crossings were constructed, the contractor was paid for all materials and equipment on the basis of lumber used, at a unit price bid.

"The city was required to award the bid to the lowest responsible bidder and pay him. The city had no right to reduce the prices because the figure was the bid price. It was the price made by the lowest responsible bidder. Whether this is the best thing is one thing. It was in this instance the method adopted."

The market price for lumber at the time of the Lincoln avenue improvement was $48 per thousand board feet, Evans contended in his answer to Beatty, while the contract price was $60. Evans added:

"The cost of labor was $12. It should have been $12 also when the material was bought as reused lumber. The city has the right to reject bids. If the city rejected one bid for $30 on reused lumber, the successive bids would have dropped to $12. The fatal thing is that Director Lang did not reject any bids. In private business this is done every day. Why not do it in public life?"

INQUIRY ON POLICY

Councilman Charles Anderson interrupted:

"The director should pay close attention to this. Council doesn't want any money back on the lumber used. That is water over the dam. The department should let Council know what the policy is to be in the future."

Councilman Harry Little said:

"In moving the ties, the costs, it appears to me, would only amount to $10 a thousand feet, instead of $30, because the ties are six inches thick."

It was at this juncture that Attorney Beatty called for Chief Engineer Reppert. Reppert testified that the cost of new lumber is $48 plus $12 for labor. When it is reused it has a salvage value, add $30 to $12, he said, and you have $42 as the value of reused lumber. He added:

"I made recommendations to change the lumber specifications. I want to get off this lumber argument the same as Council does. I am tired talking about it."

ANDERSON'S PLAN

Councilman Anderson proposed that city laborers be used in moving lumber on paving contracts such as Lincoln avenue, but was interrupted by Councilman Alderdice, who said that under the law the city forces had no right to interfere with the contractor. Anderson contended that reused lumber should not be an item in the specifications.

Attorney Beatty also objected to the use of city laborers in moving lumber, declaring it would cost the city more than to have the contractor do it, to which Anderson replied:

"I think that Director Lang and Mr. Reppert are going to make changes in the methods of handling lumber. That proves conclusively that there have been cases where the contractor has taken advantage of the city."

Attorney Evans took up the argument at this juncture and challenged the Public Works Department to produce information on contracts awarded since June 1928. He was replying to Reppert's statement that improvements had been made in the method of handling lumber. He said if there is any improvement since that time he would be glad to recognize it, and added that the figures were available at the controller's office. He then launched into a lengthy discussion as to how a contractor could bid high on a quantity that he knew would be increased, and low on a quantity to be decreased, and in the end get more money for the job than a higher original bidder.

FOUND NOTHING WRONG

Replying to Evans, Reppert pointed out that unless contingent items were included in contracts, they would have to be paid for as extra work. Evans declared that George H. Flinn, in his letter, had charged that the city paid for more work on the Lincoln avenue improvement than was actually done, and Reppert replied that he had never proved it. He said:

"Mr. Flinn put a man on the job with my permission and could find nothing wrong, for he never reported it."

There was further discussion and then Evans read a tabulation of increases on the 77 jobs under fire. He said the increases totaled 428, and amounted to $581,054.79, the percentage of the increase being 87.487 per cent. He also introduced a list of successful bidders, showing how much of the work each one had been awarded on these construction projects.

URGES SLAG

Just before Council adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, Newton F. Hopkins, an engineer of Wilkinsburg, was put on the stand. He charged that more broken stone was used in city contracts than was necessary, and urged granulated slag as being more satisfactory for sub-grade work. He said that broken stone used on the city improvements was "measured loose" instead of rolled in place, giving it a greatly increased price. Hopkins also contended that sub-grading work cost more than ordinary grading and that neither the state nor the county separated those items, but pay the same unit price for both.

Evans asked President Herron if he had heard anything from Mayor Charles H. Kline. It was the fifth time he has demanded the presence of the Mayor for questioning on political appointments in the Public Works Department.

WITNESS NOT FOUND

William Wright, the witness whom Evans alleged was intimidated, was still missing today. Assistant District Attorney William H. Colvin, who is directing a search for Wright, said that he had been informed that Wright called Frank Kurkerin, Turtle Creek contractor, Sunday, asking for a job. The call was made at a pay station within the 5-cent area of Turtle Creek.

At the request of Public Works Director Lang, James M. Clark, the safety head, ordered police and detectives to search for Wright today.

Meanwhile the dual audit of records of the Department of Supplies continues. The League of Women Voters met with officers of the Citizens' Committee last night and discussed progress made in the audit and investigation being conducted by Main & Co. Assistant District Attorney Colvin, observing both audits, promised that his office would act in the event of the discovery of irregularities.

LAUDS HEARST RUM CONTROL PROPOSAL

Schafer, Congress Anti-Dry Leader, Pledges Efforts Toward Its Adoption

By ARTHUR HACHTEN
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Out of all the suggestions for remedying the prohibition situation the proposal of William Randolph Hearst stands as the most feasible and likely to solve the problem, Representative John C. Schafer (Rep.), of Wisconsin, declared today.

As leader in the anti-prohibition forces in Congress, Schafer predicted that at the next session of Congress the "antis" will have enough votes in the House to force votes on prohibition reform bills.

The plan suggested by Mr. Hearst is to retain control of liquor legislation in the federal government and to allow restricted manufacture of alcoholic beverages under federal license for sale in states legalizing their consumption.

The government would set up a monopoly for the distribution of such beverages, selling in limited quantities to licensed restaurants, hotels and homes.

Schafer said:

"Adoption of the plan proposed by Mr. Hearst, I believe, will solve the prohibition issue, go a long way toward restoring prosperity and cut down the crime wave, which is due largely to criminals who have gotten rich in bootlegging liquor.

"I shall do all in my power as a member of Congress to see it adopted.

"Under the plan proposed by Mr. Hearst, many men would be given legitimate employment, the government would obtain revenue.

"The farmers would be benefited, for the Hearst plan would provide a market for crops."

Fayro Bath Salts will positively reduce your excess weight easily, safely, and immediately. The results attained may seem to you hard to believe; they are attested to by the evidence of hundreds of physicians and satisfied users who have written in to us to tell of their success, absolutely without any sort of solicitation.* The facts are incontestable.

Fayro is not to be confused with any internal medicines or drugs. Its formula is no secret; we will be glad to submit it to any physician for whatever laboratory tests he may desire to make. The treatment is simple and designed to be taken in your own home without anyone knowing about it except yourself, if you wish.

The results are immediate. The scales will show you the difference in a single night, and Fayro leaves you more healthful, more beautiful than ever, with the soft, velvety skin of youth. Listen to what Doctor T——, of Staten Island, N. Y. says of this modern method of reducing.

"I have had very good results with Fayro Bath Salts . . . The . . . patient has felt better and lost twenty pounds. I would like another complete course for same patient which ought to put her in striking distance of fairly normal weight." Letters of many other reputable physicians testify to the same success.

Fayro is sold only on an unconditional guarantee that if you are dissatisfied for any reason your money will be instantly refunded. More than a million and a half treatments have been sold on this guarantee. You risk nothing in giving it a fair trial.

One dollar at drug stores and toilet counters everywhere.

*Write for copy of sworn statement before Notary Public that no testimonial for Fayro has ever been solicited or paid for in any way. Fayro, Inc., North Side, Pittsburgh.

PHILADELPHIAN ON ARCTIC SUB FOR 'THRILL'

Quartermaster, Veteran of China War, Joins Wilkins For Sake of Adventure

A hardy, sea-traveled lot are the 18 Americans who will accompany Sir Hubert Wilkins in the trans-Polar submarine Nautilus when it dives under the Arctic ice pack in an attempt to reach the North Pole. They will risk their lives for honor and scientific achievement. Who they are, and why they are going, is answered in a series of personality sketches, one of which is given below. It deals with Quartermaster Edward Clark, veteran of the Chinese wars.

By HERMAN GIESKE

YONKERS, N. Y., April 7. —One member of the Nautilus' crew who is bound for the North Pole for the sake of adventure, and nothing else, is Quartermaster Edward Clark. He says:

"Just as soon as I heard that Sir Hubert Wilkins intended to go to the North Pole in a submarine, I hot-footed it to get data so I could sign up for the expedition. I am looking for adventure, and I feel certain we will get what we are looking for."

Clark, 27, is a Philadelphian, and though he has been in the Navy only eight years, he saw service against the Chinese revolutionists when stationed in the Far East as a member of the China Sea patrol.

He was in Shanghai when the bluejackets were landed and fought as infantry against the Chinese. While on patrol aboard the destroyer John Paul Jones, he voyaged up the Yangtse River 1,100 miles to the gorges.

He got a foretaste of Arctic life when stationed in Siberia and had the luck to escort the Navy round-the-world fliers from Vladivostok to Bombay in 1922.

Clark's work as quartermaster aboard the Nautilus calls for a surprisingly wide range of duties. He must assist the officer of the deck in navigational duties; he must be prepared to communicate with other vessels by semaphore signals; he must be ready to aid the electrician, and he must be equipped to give an intelligent hand in the engine room.

In brief, Quartermaster Clark on an expedition of this kind must be a general "handy man" of the expedition, alert to perform duties of a most variegated kind.

PROGRAM

|---|---|
| Overture, "Liebesfruhling," Opus 28 | Georg Schumann |
| Symphony No. 9, D Minor (Unfinished) | Bruckner |
| Entrance of the Gods into Valhalla, from "Das Rheingold" | Wagner |
| Introduction to Act II and Ride of the Valkyries, from "Die Walkure" | |
| "Voices of the Forest," from "Siegfried" | |
| Siegfried's Death Music and Finale, from "Die Gotterdammerung" | |

The Chicago Symphony Orchestra, with Frederick Stock conducting, closed our concerts for visiting orchestras in Syria Mosque last night. The audience sat entranced before the patrician Stock and his music, for this sterling musician builds a wonderful program and his men play without resorting to more than the score demands.

Mr. Lissfelt

Half the program was new to Pittsburgh. The "Liebesfruhling" Overture of George Schumann belongs to saner contemporary music; it is not difficult to trace its ancestry in Richard Wagner. From its first notes it begins its song and never ceases until the last chord. Bruckner, too, is a descendant of Wagner. In 20 years, since I last heard a Bruckner symphony, the original impression has not changed, that the devout Viennese composer had too much to say in his works, and did not know how to say enough about each idea. He overflowed with fine musical themes, but lacked the genius either to organize them interestingly, or as Beethoven and Wagner did, to filter the quintessence of beauty from each melody.

The Wagnerian numbers can claim the greatest praise for their skillful arrangement into a series which gives a fine taste of the entire "Ring" music. Here the orchestra glowed and any applause would have been too scant for its uplifting powers.

23 BILLS URGED BY AUTO CLUB

From a total of 64 bills effecting motorists which have been introduced at the present session of the State Legislature, the Pittsburgh Motor Club approves 23 and will oppose the passage of 38.

John M. Rice, chairman of the legislative committee of the club, announced today. No action was taken on bills which do not concern this district.

Financial responsibility, gasoline tax collection, and bills concerning highway expenditures are the most important motor vehicle measures before the Legislature this year according to Rice. Other members of the club's legislative group are B. V. Imbrie, R. B. Gabler, A. A. Bluestone and Henry Tranter.

Pickles In Liquor, Jail Visitor Held

DUBUQUE, Ia., April 7.—(AP.)—A pint jar of pickles and his supposedly good intentions brought Walter Bergmann to the Dubuque County jail. He came to give the pickles to his friend, Earl Buckley; but when Sheriff F. J. Kennedy decided to investigate he found they were afloat in moonshine whisky instead of vinegar.

Bergmann, therefore, was asked to stay, while federal and county officers decide what charges, if any, they will bring against him.

ings for all the secretariat. And all their living expenses "except for alcoholic drinks."

We quote "alcoholic drinks" in spite of all efforts to unquote them. Barcelona will also print a daily newspaper in all languages for the visiting habitants. There will be bullfights, fiestas and golf. Also one-way tickets to the gambling casino.

That's an ideal life for a diplomat. The only thing lacking is a parachute jump at twilight.

Lausanne, Biarritz and Cannes are the trio of other municipal claimants for international deadlocks.

These towns are famed winter resorts and are ideal for a convention starting in June or July. Europe knows its diplomats.

We accept the Barcelona offer. The future of the world lies in golf, quoted drinks and baccarat.

We approve of roulette for ambassadors when they huddle. If men are to stampede around a table we would rather see the table revolve than to see the diplomats rotate fanwise against the grain.

Geneva has already been the home factor for 11 disarmament conferences and could really claim the title by default.

But the powers that beef have finally reached that stage where they are going to give every city a chance at the convention.

There will be no reason for any town to yell that it is being slighted. Just loll back and wait and the diplomats will reach your fair city sooner or later along with the 17-year locusts and the bi-centennial flu scare.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

I THINK THERE is a great story in Billy Rose and his show, "Sweet and Low," which opened some 22 weeks ago. In this day and age a show that runs 22 weeks is regarded as something more than a success. Producers will be only too happy to tell you that it's something in the nature of a miracle.

About Billy Rose I have written several times before. Formerly a court stenographer, he stepped into the Broadway field as a highly successful writer of lyrics. Several years ago he reverted to his courting days again. In less time than it takes for a magistrate to resign, Rose became the husband of Fannie Brice.

Billy is about 31 today. When he was 25 he told me he would have Broadway far behind at the age of 30. When he was 30 I reminded him of his statement. He admitted the truth of it, but said he had changed his mind. He was going to wait until he was 35. If we're both alive at that time, I will ask him again. Then he will say he has changed his mind once more. He will wait until he is 50.

In the early part of last August, Rose decided to make his first attempt at producing. He was going to do an intimate revue, whatever that might mean, and call it "Sweet and Low." Being something of a sophisticate himself, Billy sought the advice of the elite among the Broadway boys—if you can conceive of such a thing.

The smart boys told him plenty. There was but one trouble with their advice. It was all wrong.

With his three stars — Fannie Brice, James Barton and George Hassel—Rose opened his show in Philadelphia. Against his better judgment, the young producer had put in several off-color bits and omitted a number of songs he thought were good. Among the latter was "Just a Gigolo." The smart boys told him to throw that one out.

I didn't see the Philadelphia opening, but, judging by the first night in New York, it must have been a lulu. According to the Philadelphia papers "Sweet and Low" was too long, too dull, too filthy and just too bad. One critic summed it up in a line:

"The producer's name is Rose," he wrote. "He's a Rose that does not smell so sweet."

Billy Rose had put every dime he owned into that show. The smart boys shook their heads, advised him to stand the loss of $10,000 and close his show before New York saw it.

"You'll be better off," they told him.

But Rose had had enough of the wise boys. From that point on he determined to move ahead on his own. He opened "Sweet and Low" on Broadway shortly after. And the following morning practically all Broadway agreed that he had a flop on his hands.

For the first five weeks of the run in New York "Sweet and Low" was a failure. But Rose refused to give up. He hired four managers and four press agents, and fired them in as many weeks. He cut salaries and kept shifting his cast until none of the original members remained except the three stars.

In the show's sixth week—when Rose had dropped $140,000—"Sweet and Low" suddenly displayed signs of life. Its salaries trimmed but its advertising doubled, the show jumped $6,000 in receipts. The following week found the gross at $27,000. And in the 15 weeks that followed Rose has been making plenty of money on each count.

Rose is a funny guy. He is caustic and bitter in his philosophies. He is able to kid a lot of people but there's nobody who's kidding him. He now has an organization that he stands by, and he refuses to see anyone else. He admits to liking only six men on all Broadway, and he doubts that there are even six who like him. He doesn't care particularly.

"I'm in a racket," he declares. "I'm not supposed to have any friends."

Wise words, Billy Rose. You'd make a successful columnist . . .

THE CIRCUS is in town once again and the papers are all devoting space to the biggest man in the world and his tiny midget friends. Like everyone else in New York, I always feel happy when circus times roll around. I don't give a hang for the show, but the advertisements give me the feeling that spring is here, regardless of the weather.

I wonder if the balloon boys are still pulling the same tricks they used when I was a kid? I don't see why not. The sucker tricks that were good in other days are still being worked overtime in 1931. Why not the balloon gag?

As I remember the gag, it was the simplest thing in the world. A mother walked down the street with her little boy or girl. The salesman with numerous balloons in his right hand, would wave them in the child's face. At the same time he would lean over and pinch the child with his left hand. The child, having no idea what it was all about, would give vent to a yelp.

"Ahhh," the kid would yowl as he pointed in the direction of the balloons. "Ahhh!"

Whereupon the mother, thinking her cherished offspring was crying for a balloon, would pay 10 cents for a balloon that cost the salesman one. The child would generally stop yowling when presented with the balloon. And everybody was happy.

The balloon boys did well in those days. Like the modern prohibition agent, there was a nice profit in every pinch . . .

A Written Guarantee assures the permanent removal of unwanted hair

THOUSANDS of women now know the joy of an alluringly smooth and beautiful skin, forever free from the regrowth of ugly unfeminine hair. Koremlu Cream—based on the discoveries of a noted French scientist—removes the hair for all time.

Koremlu is a fragrant, quick-drying cream. You easily and quickly apply it to the skin, and leave it on all night—on the face, legs, arms, underarm or any other part of the body where beauty demands the removal of hair.

Koremlu Cream is not to be confused with temporary correctives. Koremlu gives permanent results by weakening the follicles that hold the hairs in the roots, destroying them safely but surely. ## TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Don't Use All Your Money To Put on a 'Front'

Can the newlyweds be happy without a big time bankroll?

Betty said they could . . . and proceeded to tell us how she and the Big Boy got by (and saved money) on $39 a week. Whereupon Viola barged in this column with fire in her eye.

"Nonsense!" she snorted. "They're not living! They're not even kissing! I know, because our income is double what theirs is, and still life's an awful struggle."

Lived Modestly

Maybe you agreed with her. But we didn't and said so. And neither does J. H. B. Are you strong for spunk? Then get in on this—

"Dear Sally:

"Your answer to Viola has so tickled and gratified my wife and me that we just have to give you a hand for it. You bet a lot of people kill themselves off trying to put on a Big Front. Used to do it myself. But after spending years in thriftless way and 'keeping up with the Joneses' as a single fellow, hobnobbing with the free and easy herd, traveling extensively, both here and in foreign countries, I've quit it.

"When I met my most gracious, pleasant and cultured lady, I was hardly in a position, financially, to 'afford' marriage in the mode of our environment and associations.

"We could have waited until we were better fixed to marry, but we were fed up, both of us, on the shams and bunk of the pretenders. She believed in me, and so we decided to start out together with the idea of living inside a modest income, and eliminating the fancy gadgets. We decided to 'be ourselves' inside the modest means we had, and not try to put on 'front.'

"We had a happy wedding and a honeymoon of a week only. We selected simple and comfortable furniture for three rooms, and rented a quiet place in town for less than $20 a month. Then we watched our experiment with enjoyment. My income at that time was about $40 a week, working at my trade as a machinist.

Saved Their Money

"We maintained a better degree of health by simple, good food, and cutting out a lot of frills and late hours . . . to the tune of the taunts and sneers of a good many of our 'friends.' We saved as never before, and enjoyed it, because of our happy companionship. Of course, I kept up insurance, and other necessary things. But out of my income we've been able to save $70—and sometimes more—a month.

"Of course when this got out, we were called 'tightwads' and that hurt. But we stuck to our ideas. And by that time the 'depression' had begun, and our little baby was coming. So it was gratifying to have that money, and not be 'caught short.'

"The baby came and brought great happiness to both of us because we were prepared for her, and had the prettiest things for her that anyone could want. There were no worries about bills, because we had saved. We hadn't been able to look or act like rich folks while we did it, but we were far ahead of where we'd been if we had used our money for a 'front' instead of sticking it in the bank.

"And I noticed that those who ridiculed us were among the first to feel pinched in the 'depression.' Their ritzy cars were repossessed, their instalment jewelry hocked or sold. Some skipped out, fugitives from creditors. Others went begging to relatives, and had to 'flop' with others of their ilk, crowded together in cramped quarters.

"Reverses came fast to them, because they were swimming along with the stream.

Reverses Not Serious

"Reverses hit me too, but with a difference. We've paid our way, and held our heads up. Our darling baby girl is in good health, and has enough to eat. So we can't complain, even though I have been out of work for three months. We've been able to hold our own much longer in the face of these bad conditions than most of the people we know. And we have many rosy hopes for the future.

"I have a hunch there'll be fewer 'fronts' kept up when this depression is over. It's been a lot of experience for many who have never given a thought to trying to live within their means . . . or doing without a few things to save for a rainy day.

"Putting on a 'front' is a sap stunt anyway. And what do you get out of it? Not half so much as we've got out of our simple life! "J. H. B."

What do I think?

Three cheers and a tiger—that's what I think! And I'm not fizzing out of ignorance, either. We did it—the kid and I—on the princely salary of $12 a week! And when we climbed to $25, Rockefeller had nothing on us. But—

We didn't keep up with the fashions. We didn't maintain a "front." And even our back wore patches. Yet—it was worth it!

Do you agree with that? Would you risk poverty like that to be with someone you love? Or do you, with Viola, believe that "isn't even existing?"

Let's hear. What would YOU set as the minimum income for the newlyweds?

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Great Strides in War Against Dread Diabetes

Diabetes is a disease of great interest and concern to the human family. It is a serious ailment, of course, but few of us truly appreciate the great strides made in this field of medicine. We have only to look back a few years to realize how little we know about diabetes and what horrors victims suffered.

Dr. Copeland

Not only has the death rate been markedly reduced, but there has occurred a remarkable extension in the duration of the life of the diabetic. The outlook is better and better. This can be accounted for only by the remarkable studies made in the care of diabetes, as well as by the discovery of insulin.

Such terrifying complications as coma, gangrene and infections, which lead to sudden death, are rarely encountered. Our greater understanding of this disease, particularly in reference to the management of the diet, and the use of insulin, have brought about a great change.

The actual cause of the disease is not known. We understand much about it, but, failing to locate the exact cause, cannot prevent it.

The disease is due to the lack of a certain internal secretion. Without this substances, there results an inability to take care of the sugar of the body.

This condition is usually discovered by the finding of excessive quantities and the continued presence of sugar in the urine. Examination of the blood, too, shows an accumulation of sugar far beyond the normal limits. If this state of affairs is permitted to continue much damage is done to the body.

Diabetes is a condition in which the fundamental defect lies in the failure of the body to properly use one of its important foodstuffs. In view of this fact, it is imperative that in the care of a diabetic strict attention be given to the diet.

Since one person differs from another, individual diets must be prescribed. No set rule will do. The physician takes into consideration the height, weight, age and occupation of the patient, and the general condition of the victim. Without the personal attention of a physician and a carefully planned diet to meet the individual needs, the prospect is not bright. You need his aid and his advice about the insulin, the modern remedy for diabetes.

When the body is not properly taking care of the sugar, it will soon make its appearance in the urine. Most cases of diabetes are first recognized by the urinary tests. That is one reason why I have always recommended periodic health examinations.

Answers to Health Queries

M. H. F. Q.—How can I put on weight, especially between the shoulder blades?

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, April 8

The sidereal operations for this day point to lively and intriguing events and happenings. With Mercury and Neptune in trine aspect with Luna, much activity of a variable, subtle and complicated nature may be looked for, albeit the general complex of affairs is benefic. New projects, contracts and dealings with secret bodies, close corporations, or understandings of a secret or strategic complexion may be manipulated to satisfaction and success.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of lively and intriguing events, with new business, fresh contracts and negotiations with "mergers," "rings" or secret societies flourishing. Strategy and secret agreements may be advisable.

A child born on this day may be intellectual, literary, subtle and profound, leaning toward secret or singular methods, and gaining through conspiracy, strategy or diplomacy rather than direct action.

Made kin by "Love," experienced, once by the stout lady with greying hair and eyes lighted by the blown-upon embers of romance, and now, by the nymph with youth written all over her enchanting person.

An Entente Cordiale—the ingenue with the love-story just to be played, and the player who once was a slim little Juliet. The recruit, and the retired campaigner. The latter with a knowing heart. For does it not remember scented nights, and summer days, perfect moments—flawless moments when the whole world stood still and held its breath for a pair of young lovers? Laughter together, and foolish but intense conversation together—dialogue that was important only to them, and patter to the rest of the world.

The first kiss, the first night she slept with her new engagement ring under her pinky cheek—like a star beneath a rose. And could hardly go to sleep, for this wonderful thing that persisted in shining through the night. He had bought himself—and he was young and vain, too—cheap suits for a year that he might hoard up enough pelf to buy it! Then the chirping flock of girl-friends were told—and they marveled "Oh-hhhh—divine! Isn't it divine, Bessie?" They do not say "divine" now, the bevy of girl-friends—but "Love" is much the same, first love, engagement days.

"My dear," sighs the stout lady, "I know all about it. And my heart is jumping up and down with joy and understanding. 'Simpatica,' that's me! My heart has sat up, and is lighting the candles of a long-ago love. My dear, I, too, have almost fainted at the sight of a certain figure coming down the street. I have ceased to breathe at the sight of the back of his head in a crowd. I have gotten a lump in my throat at the way HE wore his hat, and the angle of his eye-brows! He and 'Love' and I have waded a daisy-field with a lunch-basket! We have quarreled intensely, and made-up intensely. His hand holding mine was the strangest, and the most marvelous thing in the world. The whole thing—he, I and Love—was a miracle! A MIRACLE. My dear, I haven't forgotten a thing."

And does the figure that lolls, entranced, on the back of the confiding-seat, does he smile at the stout lady who turns up her eyes and says "Ah-h l'amour! I, too, my dear!"?

No; for to "Love" the stout lady is very young indeed compared to his own life. And he remembers her love-days as well as she does. He was there! He remembers her cheek-wrinkle as once a dimple. He remembers her quite easily when she weighed one-hundred-and-ten and had an eighteen-inch waist. She doesn't look so different to him, even now. To "LOVE." And he doesn't see a thing funny in it. So he said to me!

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge's Suspicions Are Verified

My eyes had seen what Lillian's had. Indeed, I think I had seen Mary's first maneuver toward us. Ubiqutous, irrepressible Jerry, who already had caused Mr. Colin Cameron much annoyance by his insistance upon cutting in when the talkie star was enjoying a dance with the undeniable belle of the evening, tapped Mr. Cameron on the arm just as Lillian was beginning her comforting little diatribe on Phil Veritzen to me. Mary went to him eagerly, danced a step or two, then said something to him, and he released her and walked rapidly beside her until she had come up to us. Then she dismissed him with a charming smile, and a promise.

"I'll remember. Nobody else shall have the next dance."

"What I can salvage of it," Jerry retorted with an engaging grin and wandered off to take Marion away from Ronald, while Mary grasped my arm.

"Where is Noel?" she asked.

My vague fears fled at the anxiety in her tone. Her vanity might have been gratified at Mr. Cameron's constant singling of her out from the other girls her interest might have been intrigued by his patent appreciation of her gift in dancing, but all of her heart, all of her anxiety—her first thoughts—were for her betrothed husband.

"I sent him up to lie down," I said. "He appeared terribly tired, and I feared he might overdo. Dicky or Harry will fetch him down before supper."

"You're sure it's nothing but fatigue," she said, and added surprisingly, "you don't think he's guessed—"

"Guessed what, Mary?" I countered, all my misgivings returned.

She looked from side to side, almost, I thought to myself, like an animal trying to escape from a trap, and Lillian mistaking, arose.

"I'll just stroll out to the supper room and see if—" she began, but Mary clutched at her arm.

"Oh, please sit down," she entreated. "I—didn't mean I wanted to see Auntie Madge alone at all. You'll have to know about it, too, so I may as well tell you now. But—do you think we all might go into the supper room?"

"I think it would be advisable if you want to talk," Lillian advised her dryly, "for Mr. Cameron and that attentive cadet of yours are ambling in this general direction with Jerry chasing them. So let's go."

We took Mary between us and moved toward the supper room, three discomfitted young men stopping abruptly in the middle of the floor and pretending that they had urgent business together.

"It's like this," Mary began when we were safely in the supper room, with only Purnell, too far away to hear us, in evidence. "You know Noel and I can wait until the hot place freezes over before his father will let up on us."

"We'll start from that premise, Mary," I told her, smiling. "Whether it's true or not we can determine later."

She wheeled on me, her eyes suddenly alight.

"What do you mean?" she demanded. "Whether it's true or not.' Has he—" —she stopped abruptly, while I scored myself for raising any hope of hers on so flimsy a foundation as Philip Veritzen's talk with me.

"No he has taken nothing back," I said truthfully, "but go on."

"And you know it's going to be quite some time—quite—some—time—before Noel's able to earn anything much, so it's up to the other half of the sketch to get busy? Are you with me?"

"It depends altogether upon what you 'get busy' on," I told her, and Lillian nodded an assent.

"I thought you'd say that," Mary said, despondently, then threw up her head defiantly. "But this chance isn't like that other time—that cabaret business."

She stopped, averting her eyes, and I knew that the memory of that hideous experience was gripping her, Lillian spoke quickly.

"Never mind anything dead and gone. Tell us what this chance is, something Cameron's proposing, I warrant."

"Yes," Mary returned. "He says, think of it, that there is a part in his next talkie—one they are planning now—for me. I don't have to say much, but I have one dance with him, and he says that will be enough to put me across. Did you ever hear anything so glorious?"

"It's splendid, of course, child," I said, trying to make my voice hearty for I knew the surest way of arousing Mary's enthusiasm for the plan would be to oppose her without reason. "What did you tell him?"

"Why—why—I said I'd love to do it, but that I'd have to talk it over with my people first."

"And by your people, you meant."

"Why—you and Uncle Dicky, and her voice trailed off uncomfortably.

"Not Noel?" I asked quietly.

Household Hints

A new pipe cleaner is also excellent for cleaning out burner holes in a gas stove.

When sewing pockets on children's suits or rompers, set them low enough that the little fingers cannot reach to the bottom of the pocket. Then the hands cannot be pushed so far into them to tear them off.

It pays to wash several pairs of gloves at the same time, as it is a saving in time and materials. The best way to launder washable gloves is to use tepid soapsuds for washing, tepid soapsuds for rinsing and in the last tepid suds add one tablespoonful of glycerine. See if your gloves are not perfectly laundered.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Silk stockings should be laundered before they are worn. They should never be rubbed on a washboard. Soak for five minutes in a rich thick suds, squeeze between the hands, rinse three or four times in clear tepid water. During the washing, they should be turned wrong side out.

Exercise directly after a meal retards digestion. Digestion is favored by rest after eating, or at least freedom from muscular activity. It is equally important to go to the table with calm nerves and gay spirits, since worry and fatigue have a bad effect upon appetite and assimilation.

A combination of peroxide and powdered pumice stone, applied under the nail eaves with an orange wood stick, will remove discolorations. Lemon juice is effective. The best means of using it is to plunge the finger tips into the lemon pulp. It should be bathed away in a few minutes.

CORRECT MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Never Use "Mrs." in Direct Signature

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When writing a young man friend, what signature should a married lady use? Should she use "Mrs." as "Mrs. Helen Smith" or use her husband's name? READER.

If she knows the young man well, and if he knows her husband's full name, then her signature to her letter to him would be

Very sincerely yours,
Helen Smith,

or Cordially yours,
Helen Matthews Smith.

If she does not know the young man, and if she is not sure that he knows her husband's full name, the signature would be:

Very sincerely yours,
Helen Matthews Smith,
or Helen Smith.
(Mrs. Henry Smith.)

The latter form, by the way, is the form that you should have used in your letter to me. A married woman should never use the title of Mrs. as part of the direct signature of a letter, any kind of letter, social or business. She signs her informal signature (usually the first and last names of her maiden name prefixed to the last name of her married name), and then, in parentheses, if it is necessary to indicate to the reader of the letter her husband's name, she writes her formal married name.

The Bride's Gifts to Her Attendants

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am having a church wedding and reception afterward. Is it my father's place to have cars to take the guests to the reception, or is it up to the guests to get over the best way they can?

2. What is the correct time to give the bridesmaids and ushers their gifts?

3. Who pays for the use of the church? READER.

1. The guests supply their own conveyance to take them from the church to the place in which the reception is to be held.

2. At any time before the wedding. If the bride gives a party to her attendants, usually a luncheon, she gives the gifts to them at that time, and the groom gives gifts to his attendants at his bachelor dinner. If no parties of this kind are given, the presents may be given at any time.

3. The parents of the bride, who are the hosts of the occasion, pay for the use of the church, as they pay for all other expenses connected with the wedding, except the very few which are obligations of the groom.

WE NOW PRESENT

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

THEY MAY TOSS grapefruits at Rudy Vallee in Boston and raw eggs in Detroit, but there's one radio celebrity who stands by the "Connecticut Yankee" to the last dugout. He's Dave Rubinoff — Pittsburgh's own — whose superb arrangements are featured every Sunday night on the red network in the program that stars Maurice Chevalier. Dave, in the city for a few days for a reunion with his parents, brothers and sister—the first reunion in 15 years—praised Vallee celestially. Dressing rooms of Vallee and Rubinoff are only a few feet apart in the Paramount Theater, Brooklyn. The stein song youth is "the perfect gentleman," quoth Dave as he inspected the shears, paste pot and other implements on our desk yesterday. Dave got some pleasure out of that, but we got more pleasure out of fingering the $3,114 check he received for last Sunday night's broadcast.

Dave Rubinoff

The Choral Orchestra has been rejuvenated since Dave took over the baton several weeks ago . . . and many letters have been received by NBC complimenting the leader on his special arrangements. We have the arranger himself as guest writer today. He says:

"Hello, Pittsburgh. The radio world has been very kind in acclaiming my special arrangements.

"You may be interested to know that the Choral Orchestra rehearses three times a week in three different sections for the Sunday night broadcast. First I rehearse the string section, next the brass, then the balance of the orchestra. After each section has rehearsed its part I rehearse the orchestra as a whole. I have found this an ideal way of obtaining harmony that is different and brilliant. The Choral Orchestra rehearses 20 hours a week for the one-hour broadcast Sunday night which you hear in Pittsburgh through WCAE.

"Just a word about Rudy Vallee. America should be proud of him. Rudy has a marvelous education, lives a clean moral life, is a good musician, is exceptionally creative and technically he knows music. He must have had something to get where he is. Why not be good sports and hail him?

"If any readers of 'We Now Present' come to New York, I invite them to visit me at the Paramount Theater in Brooklyn —best wishes.

Dave celebrates his homecoming with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Rubinoff, in the magnificent home he bought them at Forbes and Wightman, streets. With him on this trip is his brother, Philip, who plays the first violin in the Choral Orchestra. A sister, Mrs. William I. Buchman, has come down from Blairsville and a brother, Charles, an attorney, has journeyed from Detroit.

* * *

The most enthusiastic of all the Rubinoffs is Herman, the eldest, who was the first to migrate to this country from Russia.

Comment About Artists, Programs

Brian McDonald is to conduct a radio talent search on WJAS every Thursday night at 6:30, starting this week. We can recall that Brian "discovered" Jackie Heller, Pat Haley and Alan Jones, while manager of that station some years ago.

Fay Templeton (Mrs. W. J. Patterson) is to listen-in at the Schenley apartments tonight when Frank Crumit dedicates a medley of songs to the once-famous actress (WCAE at 8).

"For a little child shall lead them—" tonight's Sacred Song period, KDKA at 7:30, is a tribute to lovely children everywhere.

"Moon Maiden" with a cast of husband and wife (WCAE at 11) bears great promise as a mystery broadcast . . . a triangle of class A entertainment on the air at 9:30 with a bit about Death Valley Scotty, KDKA; Little Jack Little, WCAE, and Howard Barlow's Symphony giving Ravel's "Bolero" on WJAS . . . and Giovanna Suagusa, who warbles "Luxembourg Garden" on KDKA at 9, is only 19, and etarted her musical career as a pianist.

Out of the city try: Gus Van, the funny man, WJZ, WENR at 7:15; "Saki Get Rich," WJZ, WGAR at 7:45; Coon-Sanders Nighthawks, WEAF, WGY at 8:30; Landt Trio and White, WJZ at 8:30; Kate Smith, "The Dixie Girl," WJZ, WGAR, WJR, WENR at 11:30.

Lowell Thomas is first this Friday . . . next week, Mrs. Hagger Lewis, the former Mrs. Sinclair Lewis, talks on "Authors I Have Known" . . . another speaker is to be Dixie Willson, circus girl writer.

Lorna Fantin has looked at the stars and decrees that the Pittsburgh Pirates will finish fifth in the National League this year . . . that the "world serious" will involve the St. Louis Cardinals and the New York Yankees . . . the New York Giants are rated sixth.

Of the Pirates, Lorna says: "They will encounter many unexpected bumps."

Maurice Chevalier was overrated as a radio star and may not finish his 26-week contract with the orchestra conducted by Dave Rubinoff . . . possible that a guest artist will be substituted each week . . .

Still many bouquets being sent this department for the Knute Rockne oration via WJAS Saturday and the Tom Noonan broadcast last Sunday.

WJAS starts a new comic series, "Bringing Up Father," this Sunday at 7:30.

Getting back to that pin-dropping business, a certain radio manufacturer recently dropped several hundred radio tubes from an airplane at an altitude of 2,000 feet . . . nine tubes recovered sans carton were not broken and functioned perfectly after the descent.

AN OBLIGING BEAUTY DOCTOR

A Beauty Specialist Gives Home-Made Recipe to Darken Gray Hair

Mrs. M. D. Gilleapie, a well-known beauty specialist of Kansas City, recently gave out the following statement regarding gray hair:

"Anyone can prepare a mixture at home that will darken gray hair, and make it glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

"These ingredients can be purchased at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and will not rub off."

The LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK April 7.—Radio is gradually revolutionizing rural worship in America. The little cross-roads church, which, with its hard-working, poorly-paid pastor, its shrill but earnest choir and its squeaky but reliable organ, was once a significant part of the American landscape is to become, according to the prophets of the microphone, an "electronic chapel."

None other than O. H. Caldwell, a former high priest of the Radio Commission, adjusting the spectacles of the seer, sees radio tubes enlisted more and more in the cause of religion, sees them one day taking the places of church bells, choir and organ in the rural house of worship.

He even goes further. He believes the rural preacher himself "may have to give way to noted divines whose sermons, carried from metropolitan pulpits, will be audible to countless thousands of Sabbath worshipers in electronic chapels."

* * *

The wayside meeting-house, according to the Caldwellian picture, will become a temple of music in which programs by the world's greatest organists and vocalists will be heard.

* * *

Even the little church belfry will be shed of its oldtime glory, if the prophets of the new age are to be believed, for it will house the tones of carillons booming by radio across the meadows with even greater resonance and volume than are now audible along Fifth avenue and Riverside Drive.

[illegible] quest of civ[illegible] field untapped. Religion—big town religion—has long been closely identified with the microphone. Now a new aspect is presented—an aspect which must be of great concern to theological seminaries. For radio in advancing to the rural church limits the field of clergymen, while at the same time it enlarges the scope of those ministers who have gained an important pastorate in metropolitan centers. To the latter the microphone will bring a new and vast renown, a force and influence unprecedented in American life.

In the transformation which Caldwell predicts much of the charm and picturesqueness of the American countryside will disappear. Scenes that furnished inspiration to countless poets, novelists and painters will become a memory. The American hamlet will become as standardized as the American city.

And there, my parishioners, is cause for a tear. When the inhabitants of the great open spaces have been sucked into the cultural mold of the microphone there will be no part of the landscape to which we can point with pride as one defiant of urban influence. The city idea will prevail throughout the republic. City voices, city thoughts, city reactions to life. It must bring great alarm to George (AE) Russell and his back-to-the-farm supporters, for in the radio age back-to-the-farm means merely on-to-the-city.

* * *

The most intriguing moment—and intriguing is the only word for it—on the loudspeakers today is to eavesdrop on the police chiefs of Chicago as they flash bulletins of crime-in-the-making to their motor-cruising minions. One never knows the climax to these flashes, whether the criminal has been caught or what is the extent of his depredations, but one is fascinated by the manner of the broadcast.

Herron Approves Wharf Beautifying Proposal

CITY FACES TROLLEY FARE INCREASE

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

Walter Davenport and Robert Vale have written a fascinating story around the tempestuous life of Boies Penrose, who was certainly the most arrogant and ruthless of Pennsylvania's political czars. Davenport devotes much space to Penrose's runins with Boss William Flinn, then a political ruler of Pittsburgh and identified as readily by most of us as the original Flinn of Booth & Flinn.

William Pfarr

Flinn spent most of his life in politics. For many years he was allied with the late Chris Magee. In his later years Flinn earned the label of reformer. Older politicians agree that the high point in his career occurred when he carried Pennsylvania for Roosevelt in 1912.

The old-timers concede that Flinn was an undisputed power in city and county politics and, oftentimes, an important state influence, although he never rose to the position of THE leader. Usually he was one of a triumvirate, although it does not appear on record that the city and county ever had one all-powerful political boss.

It was in Flinn's time that the section of ground now occupied by the Court House and City-County Building—Grant's Hill—became known as "The Bloody Fifth Ward."

They held torchlight parades during election campaigns in those days. And the town was always split into two factions. One faction, from the Hill, would come marching down Wylie avenue to High street (now Sixth avenue) and at "The Bloody Fifth" the enemy would be met. There the Hill invaders would try to push on to the downtown but seldom did a parade remain after those battles. Torchlights were hurled recklessly, bricks were tossed with admirable aim—weapons of any sort were allowed. Anything was fair, then, in love and politics.

The fairness and unfairness was not confined to physical battles. And it's a poor memory whose owner doesn't recall the cartoons on Flinn the old Leader used to publish. The owners of the Leader, the Nevins, were opposed to Flinn politically and their favorite subject was a caricature of their political enemy, outfited in a checkered suit, a diamond in his necktie and a cracking whip in his big hands.

With all their dispute, everybody in those days seemed agreed on railroad passes. In the summer, when a ward leader wanted to take his wife and six children to Atlantic City he dropped down to Chris Magee's office, on the way to the station, asked for and obtained, without dissent the necessary transportation, free. If Chris' office happened to be locked, the ward leader probably would go to any other politician's office, or possibly to the saloon in his ward, for the saloonkeeper who didn't have his supply of free tickets was a political inopportunist. They won't give 'em away today, but the railroads were glad to hand out passes by the bundles then in return for legislation which the politicians railroaded through.

It is fair to assume that Penrose was never short of passes—indeed short of anything, but fact. Davenport tells how Penrose demanded huge sums for campaign money and often enjoyed free whisky.

Davenport gives the impression that Penrose did not have much regard for Flinn For that matter, Penrose hadn't much regard for anybody—but Penrose. A story Davenport tells illustrates Penrose in one direction.

Penrose, a national figure and a United States Senator, shunned all social affairs, unless the affairs were staged against a brass rail. But finally a cousin inveigled him to attend a reception given by the last word in Philadelphia society—an elderly woman who regarded all those who came over on the Mayflower as the middle class.

As Penrose was admitted to her home she limped across the room on a cane to greet him with all of her aristocratic demeanor.

"How do you do, Mrs. So-and-so?" Penrose asked formally. And then he added: "What the hell's the matter with your leg?"

WILL ROGERS SAYS

MEXICO CITY, April 7.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Viva la Mexico City! This is a great old city and no excuse for anyone not coming. It don't take long. Left El Paso in the morning and made the 1,200 miles in nine hours on regular passenger line. Fare is $75. American pilots and fast Lockheed ships. Country is peaceful, working and happy. That last revolution kinder discouraged their gangsters. This fellow Clark that took Morrow's place is here. Seems good to not hear a prohibition argument or a speech on "business is slightly on the upgrade."

Will Rogers

Yours, WILL.

WATERFRONT FUND GIFT FAVORED

Council President Declares City Will Co-Operate to Improve Parking Stations

Immediate action on city wharf improvements is promised by Council President John S. Herron if an offer made by Attorney Harry I. Miller to obtain $25,000 for beautification is carried out.

Miller, in a letter to Herron several days ago, said he knew of a prominent business man who was willing to spend the money if the city would co-operate.

AID TO EMPLOYMENT

Miller suggested the project would provide work for many men, at the same time improving the appearance of the parking sites on Water street and Duquesne way. Herron commented:

"The idea to my mind, is a good one. Mr. Miller and the people he represents can rest assured that the city and Council will 'go along' with them. The $25,000 would be a good start on improvement.

"My idea has been to erect platforms, level with the street, of concrete and steel. Motorists could drive onto the platforms without danger of flood waters harming their cars."

OPPOSE PRIVATE OPERATION

Council has in its files an offer from the C. W. Hamilton Company, representing an unnamed client, quoted as being willing to lease the wharves for parking purposes at $50,000 annual rental for 20 years. No councilmanic action has been taken.

Many protests have been received against leasing the wharves to individuals.

Munitions Lack Foiled Victory, Foch Declares

By MARSHAL FERDINAND FOCH,

CHAPTER X.

The two battles of the Yser and Ypres had been won by the closely co-ordinated efforts of three severely tried armies. The component parts of each national force had been suddenly and unexpectedly assembled. Each was commanded by its own chief: the King of the Belgians, Field Marshal Sir John French and myself. And yet, in spite of this situation, no more perfect unity of will and of action was ever realized than in this improvised assemblage of troops, hastily brought together to save the common cause from the assaults of a powerful adversary in the act of striking a decisive blow with fresh troops and very powerful accessories.

If it had been my lot to take an important part in these two battles, inspire certain decisions and stimulate a number of acts, alongside of two such commanders as a King and a Field Marshal of England—both of proved capacity—my situation did not devolve from any decree giving me the right of command over Allied troops, but rather was it the result of the confidence in me manifested by these highly placed persons and the authority accorded me in their councils.

This must necessarily be the attitude between Allies in any coalition. Each army has its own spirit and tradition; each has to satisfy the requirements of its own government, and the latter, in its turn, has its own particular needs and interests to consider.

Moreover, each army has its own characteristic pride and each rates very high the weight of the burden which the war has brought to it and shows a corresponding hesitation in the face of new efforts and new sacrifices demanded of it by the battle. It follows that common direction is created and maintained above all by the confidence which governments and Allied Commanders-in-Chief bestow upon some chosen individual.

Marshal Foch

Supreme command narrowly exercised divides the effort of a coalition; confidence unites and strengthens them. Neither at Yser nor at Ypres did I have any written authority to command.

While the enemy offensive on the Western front had been checked and the Allied armies got a chance to enjoy a comparative rest, if the Germans were not to run most serious risks they would be obliged to start an offensive on the Eastern front, where the progress of the Russian armies was very disquieting.

Value of Machine-Guns

To do this, they would have to take a considerable part of their forces from the West. This imposed upon the Allies the obliga-

In yesterday's instalment, Marshal Foch told of Allied operations in Flanders that had succeeded in checking the German advance on the banks of the Yser and at Ypres, and had frustrated the German general staff's plan to defeat the Allies quickly on the Western Front and then concentrate on defeating Russia. With exhausted man power and shortage of material, the Allies fought stubbornly to retain the small slice of Belgium not occupied by the enemy and to save the Channel ports. In today's instalment Marshal Foch continues his vivid narrative of the desperate struggle in Flanders.

RATE STUDY MADE BY EXPERTS

Further Cut in Service Is Forecast; Company Fails To Meet License Charges

Pittsburgh faces an increase in street car fares and a reduction in service, it appeared today following the Pittsburgh Railways report to Council that it was unable to meet regular payments due the city for the last three months of 1930.

W. H. Boyce, commercial manager for the railways, explained that the company has no definite plans for revising its rate structure or reducing its service, but that some means of relief would have to be found in the future. Boyce said the company did not want to increase fares while unemployment was general and business depressed.

T. J. Fitzgerald, general manager of the railways, and Charles A. Finley, chairman of the traction conference board, informed Council yesterday that the payment could not be met.

EXPECTS TO PAY

Fitzgerald disclaimed any desire by the company to escape the payment on a technicality, declaring it will be made when conditions improve. The money will be owed at least another three months, it was said.

Fitzgerald added:

"It is hoped that we will be able to meet the payments at a future date, by improvements in general business conditions, a reduction of service, an a revision of fare structure."

President John S. Herron, who received the letter for Council, ordered it referred to committee for further action and a report.

$75,000 DUE CITY

The payment due the city amounted to about $75,000. It was payable under an agreement with the city providing for supervision of street car operations by the Traction Conference Board. Under the agreement, the payment of interest on the company's bonds is a claim on earnings prior to that of the city. Any surplus earnings over the charges for bond interest and amounts due the city must be used for the improvement of service under the agreement.

In recent years there has been no surplus.

DEALERS VIEW SOUND PICTURE

A sound motion picture, "Every Third Wheel," featuring discussion of merchandising and business conditions, and showing how Zeppelins are built and operated, was presented at a meeting of 500 Goodyear dealers from this section in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association yesterday. A. E. Hertzig, Pittsburgh branch manager of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, presided.

Mr. Hertzig

R. S. Wilson, vice president and sales manager of the company, showed views of the construction of the Navy airship Akron, now being built, as well as views of the company's plants in various sections of the world.

A button emblematic of his 20 years service with the company was presented Hertzig by William Hazlett, district manager of the company.

Civil War Nun

SISTER MARY DAVID, 97

Sister Mary, Order of the Sisters of Charity, Emmitsburg, Md., one of three living nuns who served on Civil War battlefields. A Pittsburgher, she will be immortalized in a stained glass window in the new Sacred Heart Church, Shady avenue.

Church Plans Memorial To Nuns of Civil War

Immortalizing the famous nuns of the battlefield, who during the Civil War nursed sick and dying soldiers not only in hospitals, but on the firing line, is planned in one of the medallions in the new stained glass windows over the facade of the Sacred Heart Church.

Three of the nuns, one of whom is a former resident of Pittsburgh, are still alive. They are Sister Mary David, 97, of the Sisters of Charity, Emmitsburg, Md., formerly of Pittsburgh; Sister Mary Lauretta, 87, also a Sister of Charity, of Nazareth, Ky., and Sister Mary Ignatius, 87, a Sister of St. Joseph, in Wheeling, W. Va.

Sister Mary David entered the order from Pittsburgh and is a grandaunt of Mrs. Jacob Roeser, of 418 Stratton lane, opposite the new Sacred Heart Church. The photographs of the three living nuns will be used in the design for the new windows.

ROBBERS BEAT YOUTH, BROKE

Angered when they failed to find money in the clothing of John Seigel, of Millvale, early today, three armed youths beat Seigel unconscious and left him lying in Babcock boulevard. Tracing the license number of the machine, Millvale police say it was one that had been hired from a drive-yourself company.

Seigel was walking in Babcock boulevard when the three men stepped out of the machine. When they failed to find any money, two of them struck Seigel with revolver butts, knocking him to the pavement. A pedestrian who witnessed the attack obtained the license number.

The appointment of Lawrence Heikel as clerk of the North Side Market House is recommended in a communication to City Council from the North Side Market Association, to be acted upon today. The post of clerk has been vacant for more than a month.

Heikel is recommended, the communication states, because he is a lifelong resident of the Twenty-second Ward, and "by reason of his business affiliations, is well fitted for the job."

Fireman Injured In Cassett St. Fire

Hoseman John Callahan, 40, of No. 26 Engine Company, was injured when he stepped on a nail early today while fighting a fire in two frame dwellings at 1 and 3 Cassett street. He was taken to Mercy Hospital. The fire originated in the kitchen of the home of Sylvester Brown, a Negro, at 1 Cassett street, and spread to the rear of a vacant house at 3 Cassett street. # SHORT WEIGHT POTATO SACKS FILLED TO SATISFY LAW

PRODUCE MEN COMPLY WITH CITY ORDER

Crews Work Overtime Bringing Shipment Up To Weight Requirements

Crews of produce men worked until an early hour today weighing and adding to thousands of 15-pound sacks of potatoes which were held up in the produce yards of the Pennsylvania Railroad yesterday by James P. Bailey, chief inspector of the city's Bureau of Weights and Measures, who charged many of the sacks were underweight.

Threats of an injunction against the city by produce wholesalers were abandoned yesterday, and they set about tearing open the many sacks to add potatoes to make up the deficit.

STAMP HELD ILLEGAL

The city charged most of the sacks did not contain the 15 pounds of potatoes stamped on the sack. Bailey, citing the fact that the stamp read "15 pounds when packed," stated that the stamp was illegal under Pennsylvania law.

The produce men argued that all vegetables lose natural moisture during shipping, and thus accounted for the short weight.

Bailey and two of his inspectors walked on the platform yesterday afternoon as six carloads of the potatoes were unloaded. After weighing several of the bags the inspector ordered the entire shipment to remain on the platform, and threatened prosecution if any were moved without his consent.

ACTS ON COMPLAINTS

The potato dealers argued that every vegetable shipment on the platform probably was underweight in the same manner, but Bailey said he was out only for potatoes, so onions, celery and other produce was not weighed.

Bailey said he was acting on complaints of the Retail Merchants' Association independents and several housewives.

The shipment of potatoes was consigned to several merchants.

CLUBWOMEN PUSH GARDEN PROJECT TO ASSIST UNEMPLOYED

WILL PROVIDE SITES, SEEDS AND TOOLS

Mrs. Phillips Plans Horning Meeting; Proposes Street Flower Sales by Women

Pittsburgh clubwomen are organizing to inspire backyard gardening as a relief measure to assist the unemployed. Each club will learn from welfare agencies identities of needy families, and will obtain garden sites for them, furnishing seeds at wholesale cost. The clubs will also help to provide implements and will encourage the gardeners with prizes.

The Brentwood Civic Club is planning to assist 18 families. Club members will visit each family and see that they have gardening space, seeds and tools, if they are willing to co-operate.

PROPOSES FLOWER SALES

Mrs. John M. Phillips, chairman of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women, plans to call a meeting at Horning, near Carrick, this week, to encourage gardening. Those who do not need gardens to supplement their own larder will be urged to lend their land to others. She said:

"Women with a natural facility for raising flowers should be given city permits, like the apple men, to sell flowers on the city streets."

The local enthusiasts point to Detroit, where the Mayor's Unemployment Committee has obtained considerable gardening space in and outside the city. The soil has been analyzed, and free use of tractors, garden tools and seeds obtained. Gardens of unemployed persons will be protected by city police and American Legion volunteers.

BUREAU WOULD ASSIST

Henry R. Eby, director of Allegheny County Agricultural Extension, while unfamiliar with the Detroit situation, believes the topography there may be more favorable to community gardening than in Pittsburgh. He said:

"Probably the right angle of approach in Pittsburgh would be to encourage development of the home garden. Any improvements in reclaiming land would be a permanent investment. This bureau will test soil for lime requirements and give advice on fertilizer and general garden practice."

J. H. Weisman, 2334 Spring street, Carrick, field superintendent of the Vacant Lot Garden Association in 1914, and active in war-garden work, believes community gardening is just as practical in Pittsburgh as in Detroit. He said:

"Now is the time to get busy. It will soon be too late. Plants should be started in conservatories for early planting. Pittsburgh lands, comparatively heavy and wet, can't be plowed before mid-April. But surveys should be made now, permission of owners of land secured, and equipment prepared."

Ten Commandments Held Utterly Incomplete As Moral Code

The Ten Comamndments are utterly incomplete as a moral code and probably are not used as such by any person, Dr. Roswell Johnson told the Women's Press Club at its meeting in the Woman's City Club yesterday afternoon. And so, after setting forth his ethical principles, Dr. Johnson proceeded to give "A Moral Code for an Age of Science," stating the 38 precepts in that code.

These he divided into groups—for an individual as such and as mate, parent and citizen. Self has a place in ethics, Dr. Johnson declared, therefore in laying down his precepts for "self" he included the cultivation of a capacity for enjoyment (through increase of interests) and development of a philosophical attitude. As a mate one should seek the best obtainable and should cultivate a wide acquaintance among eligibles. Apropos of this precept, Dr. Johnson said, going to a woman's college loses 5 per cent of marital chances.

Another duty as mate was to beware of too high a standard of living, discussing which the speaker said he regarded as vicious the old Victorian idea of "supporting a wife in the style to which she had been accustomed." That divorce should be granted where necessary and where marriage is irreparable is Dr. Johnson's belief, but he advocated an expert, such as the Los Angeles Institute of Marital Relations, rather than a divorce court. Chastity should be observed in the interest of marital stability and the children, he said.

Under the duties of parent he listed the use but not abuse of birth control and said the number of children should be determined by economic conditions and heredity.

Mrs. A. W. Smith, Jr., introduced Dr. Johnson.

To be in the world but not of it; to believe in co-operation and conciliation but not coercion, is America's foreign policy as Dr. William Starr Meyers sees it and as he expressed it to a capacity audience at the Twentieth Century Club yesterday. His talk was a general one on internationalism, in which he expressed his views on several countries.

Apropos of the visit of the Prince of Wales to South America, he called His Highness "an official drummer — the best traveling salesman the world has ever seen." King George and Queen Mary, he declared, will go down in history as two of the finest monarchs Great Britain has ever had. Their people, he said, have a personal affection for them.

Applause greeted Dr. Meyers' statement that his sympathy was all with the British government and that politically speaking Gandhi was the wiliest of Orientals. He was also applauded when he said he would like to see Congress pass a non-interco-operative act with Russia; that American men who send their brains and their machinery to Russia are building up a Frankenstein to destroy themselves. Speaking of Italy, D. Meyers said the country, although advanced in culture, is backward politically and that Mussolini is a medieval ruler over a medieval people.

For one of the few times in the history of the Twentieth Century Club, an appeal was made to the membership, Mrs. Carroll Miller making it, in behalf of the local emergency fund committee.

FASHION REVEALS ANKLE AGAIN IN EVENING FROCKS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, April 7.—We are being permitted to feel light about our feet—sartorially speaking, of course. Ankles are being treated to a little night life again, through a delicate veil of tulle or lace, but none the less they can be quite visibly discerned. The dress with transparent hem or with a short slip under net or lace is making its appearance at several houses here. This type of dress stresses a most youthful and dainty note and will no doubt be important for summer wear.

OTHER FROCKS are featuring the slit hem, slit in three or four places, while still other models are some four inches from the floor. But, withal, the long skirt continues to prevail for formal evening and afternoon clothes, for dignity in dress does mean something, after all, as some of us have discovered after looking at portraits made about three years ago.

PLENTY OF DELIGHTFUL frocks are being offered in the section devoted to formal wear by every designer. White, blue and pink are all prime favorites, with black seen less frequently than has been the case for some time. When black is used, it is to make the filmy type of model, but it is decidedly in the minority for evening at most of the leading establishments. The two alluring frocks sketched for this page are very good examples of what will shortly grace the ballroom floor and both are in colors. The model to the left is of faded pink crepe romain and features intricate piecings cut in points, fitting closely over the hips and giving length and slimness to the line. The low circular flounce touches the floor all around. There is a handsome brilliant and ruby buckle in front of the narrow belt.

PITT STUDENT, TEACHER ELOPE

Erwin Eugene Labbett, 23, of 40 Somerset street, and Emma Henrietta Brietweiser, 22, of 1916 Carson street, childhood sweethearts, who attended South Side High School, engaged for seven years, decided not to wait until Erwin graduated from the University of Pittsburgh in June, and were secretly married in Cumberland last Thursday.

Emma will continue teaching her first-grade class in Snodgrass school, Mt. Washington. Erwin will keep on as lifeguard at the Oliver pool, Tenth and Bingham streets, until he graduates. Then he plans to teach.

The elopement was a surprise to the bride's parents and friends. Mrs. F. J. Brietweiser, the girl's mother, said:

"I knew they would be married sometime, but I never dreamed they'd run away so unexpectedly. They were married in the Lutheran Church in Cumberland, and are staying with me for the present."

The groom's brother, Bryan Labbett, and his wife did not know of the elopement until informed by the Sun-Telegraph.

Foch Resented Selection of Gallieni By War Ministry as Joffre Successor

tion of operating in such a way as to retain, on the Western front, the greatest possible number of these forces.

The war of movement had already demonstrated the immense value of the machine-gun to the defense, especially when combined with entrenchments; the enemy had now time to reinforce these with barbed wire entanglements, concrete shelters for machine-guns and flanking guns underground or armored communications. The quarters of the men were often veritable citadels which an opponent was obliged to destroy before launching any infantry attack.

This destruction required artillery powerful enough to demolish these shelters as well as the trenches and their fields of protecting wire. Lack of suitable material had already halted our offensive in the war of maneuver; the want of it was even more strongly felt in this war of position which so suddenly arose.

Since man-power could not capture positions organized by modern methods, it was imperative that our factories be asked to furnish as quickly as possible material capable of reducing them, and the commander-in-chief had to turn his attention to the question of production. Here, and here only, could be found the means of pushing forward the war, at all events on the Western front.

But during the time which must ensue before it was possible to realize this development in our tactics, we could not forget our Allies on the Eastern front, the Russian army, which, by its energetic intervention, had drawn on itself a large portion of the enemy's forces and had thus enabled us to achieve the victory of the Marne.

Joffre Injured

It was our duty so far as was possible, to go to its assistance. Herein lay the reason for operations, however fruitless they may now seem, such as those we had already undertaken and for continuing along the same lines with others. If we were not yet in a position to achieve the victory, we could at least force the enemy to retain on the Western front all the forces which he had accumulated there and thus prevent him from moving them to the Eastern theater. A decisive offense on the latter front might be the prelude to his complete victory.

It was on January 17, 1915, that Gen. Joffre was the victim of a motor-car accident which might have had serious results. We were traveling together in the same car along a road from Rousbrughe to Dunkirk, when the way was suddenly blocked by a heavy truck, the steering gear of which had broken. A collision between the two vehicles resulted, in which the Commander-in-Chief received such serious contusions that he was obliged to give up the round of inspections he intended to make and return by rail to his headquarters at Romilly. I emerged unhurt from the accident. Fortunately, after a few days, he recovered completely.

A little while after this incident I wrote a letter to the Minister of War which I believed my functions as assistant to the commander-in-chief justified. In it I asked him what course I should have taken if this accident had rendered Gen. Joffre incapable of exercising command.

Also supposing such a case to occur, upon what officer at the front would devolve the duty of taking steps to meet an emergency which some action of the enemy might precipitate that very moment. In reply, I was informed that I need not concern myself about this contingency, since the government had already provided for it.

British Seek Transfer

As a matter-of-fact during the month of August, Gen. Gallieni had been designated to command the French Armies in case of such an event. In spite of his great intelligence and undisputed ability, Gen. Gallieni, at this date, had taken only a small part in the war and especially in the war of trenches.

Politicians are too quick in forming opinions as to soldiers. The only place where officers can be estimated is on the field of battle, and here the measure of their ability is the results they accomplish.

At the beginning of December the British government had indicated to the French government its wish that the British forces in Flanders should be transferred further north; here they could hold a part of the Allied front nearer to the coast, and more especially, rest their left on the sea. It was thought that such a move would give great satisfaction to public opinion in England.

From Ostend to Zeebrugge on the Belgian coast, Great Britain was exposed continually to an enemy threat which could best be met by having the British Army attack along the coast toward the naval base at Ostend.

This idea was especially dear to the British First Lord of Admiralty, Winston Churchill. It was much less dear, however, to the commander-in-chief of the British Army, Field Marshal Sir John French, and even less dear to the commander-in-chief of the French Armies, Gen. Joffre.

Both these saw a serious disadvantage in devoting the main effort of the British Army to an object which concerned the naval strength alone and which diverted it from action against the German Army in a quarter which would determine the fate of the war.

Lacked Munitions

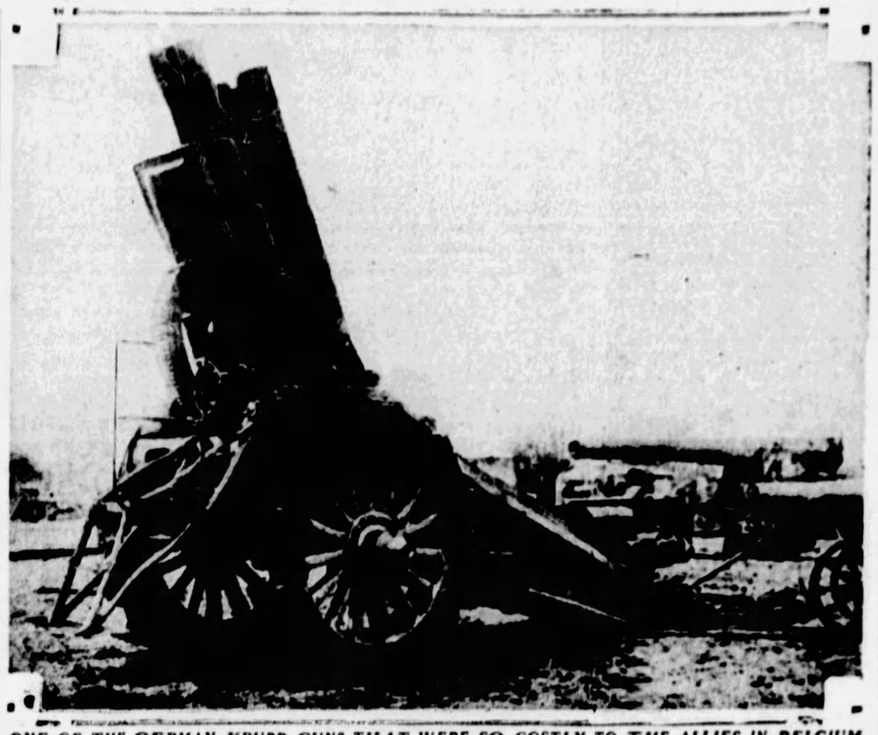
Under these conditions, and after much discussion, it was arranged during the latter part of December that the British Army, while maintaining its right at La Bassee, should successively relieve the corps of the French 8th Army, availing itself for this purpose of reinforcements as they arrived from home. The French Army would keep in Nieuport the troops which were there, but would evacuate progressively the Ypres salient, retaining only a detachment at Elverdinghe, intercalated between the left of the British and the right of the Belgians.



ONE OF THE GERMAN KRUPP GUNS THAT WERE SO COSTLY TO THE ALLIES IN BELGIUM

As it turned out, the plan of relief thus arranged met with great delay in execution, due, in the first place, to the slow arrival of the British reinforcements. Lord Kitchener, the Minister of War, was anxious to dispatch to the Continent only troops which had been completely organized into divisions or army corps, while Marshal French would have been glad to have them come by battalion.

Penury of munitions also proved a matter of embarrassment to the Marshal in planning for the extension of his front and, indeed, the slow progress being made for organizing their manufacture in England caused him considerable anxiety.

Meanwhile, the British First Lord of the Admiralty tried to have his plan for an attack on Ostend reconsidered by offering to provide a reinforcement of 3,000 marines for the French detachment at Nieuport.

Gen. Joffre maintained his opinion that a battle having land objectives was more important, insisting moreover that it was on the left of our Tenth Army, in the La Bassee region, that the efforts of the British Army could best be directed. He endeavored, therefore, to obtain from Sir John French his agreement on two points—the extension of the British front, and active co-operation in the French Attacks.

As has been seen, the progress of the war had been checked by the Allies' lack of munitions and war material. The prolongation of this inactivity and the anxiety it produced in public opinion had led the Cabinet of a certain government to intervene in the conduct of operations, push them into false channels and thus render the task of the High Command more difficult. Once more our poverty in material was leading to serious consequences.

As a result of these various complications, the British Army, by the end of January had relieved only the French 16th Corps, which was less progress than had been jointly agreed upon; the French 9th and 20th corps had not yet been replaced.

British Drive Halted

This situation continued without any appreciable change up to the middle of March. But on that date the preparations of the British First Army for an attack in the La Bassee area were completed, and the negotiations then going on were interrupted and could not be resumed until the enterprise had produced its results.

The British 1st Army, commanded by Gen. Haig, was entrusted with this offensive. The troops were sent forward on March 10. At the beginning they made some gains; but they could not be extended or even wholly maintained during the following days.

On the nights of March 12-13, Gen. Haig issued orders for the offensive to be stopped, but the troops were directed to establish themselves firmly in the positions they had captured on the 10th. The decision of the commander of the British First Army is explained by his fear of running short of ammunition as well as by the losses his forces had suffered.

It was now possible to return to the plan of relieving the French Army Corps around Ypres. At a conference held at Chantilly, between Sir John French, Lord Kitchener, Gen. Joffre and M. Millerand, it was decided that the British Second Army should relieve the French 9th and 20th corps before April 20, that two new British divisions should be sent to France, and that the French offensive in Artois should take place at the end of April.

These operations were carried out rapidly, and by April 7 the 9th Corps had been withdrawn from the front and directed toward the zone of the Tenth Army. Then on April 19 the 20th Corps followed suit. Thus by the end of April a new distribution of Allied forces in the north had been effected.

"Stepping Sisters" Bring Tornado of Laughs Into the Pitt

By GEORGE SEIBEL

It might easily have been an epidemic of hysteria at the Pitt Theater last night, for the "Stepping Sisters" introduced to Pittsburgh by George Sharp's Players are very infectious dames. From the moment when Ruby Blackburn completed the trio, and they settled down in the sofa to discuss the old days when they all three carried spears in the burlesque Amazons, Howard Warren Comstock's comedy is a riot of fun.

George Seibel

The frivolous and sometimes riotous farce revolves around these three stepping sisters—impersonated by Ruby Blackburn, Laurette Browne and Alice Anne Baker. Ruby is the only one who is still proud of having carried a spear, Laurette has caught Shakespeare and talks of the time when she played Juliet with Sir Henry Irving. Alice Anne has married a man of wealth and is trying to climb into society.

They are all brought together by a benefit performance in the classy Long Island community, where the unabashed sister makes her snobbish ex-partners ultimately ashamed of themselves. And the last curtain finds them united like the Three Guardsmen, "one for all and all for one," ready to drain three foam-crested schooners as in the good old days.

MANY NEW FACES

Since Impresario George Sharp and some of his faithful retainers were in Columbus for the opening of his new theater, many new faces were in the cast. Ruby Blackburn and Laurette Browne are guests, playing the same parts they played when "Stepping Sisters" was produced on Broadway. They are delicious as types of the indestructible showgirl, especially the convivial and boisterous Ruby, who is looking for her "boy friend" in the benefit audience and finds him in an unexpected quarter. Laurette also raised shrieks of laughter when she absorbed nearly a quart of "forbidden juice," quoting Omar, and punctuated her Shakespeare with hiccoughs. And Alice Anne was just as good as if she too had been in the original Broadway production.

Robert Fiske did his usual fine work as the husband of the climbing sister, and Peggy Dougherty was charming as the daughter, with Billy Link most amusing as her sissified lover, and Howard Inches looking very Hollywoody as the favored one.

Every one played with vim and gusto, as the farce requires. For it must not be examined too closely—there are too many loose joints and places where a laugh has been left out. But those left-out laughs are not missed—there are plenty that have been put in.

NEW GAUGE OF EMOTION

Sister Ruby furnishes a new gauge of emotion when she tells how she "listened to sob stories till she cried in her beer." If there had been any of the amber liquid in parquet or balcony, it would have been saline with mirth, even though the Congress of Clubs was having a benefit—dignity was blown away as by dynamite.

Between the acts there were dances and vocal solos by two departments of the Congress of Clubs. The dancers were Shirley Mae Jackson, Virginia Miller, Betty and Billy Johnson. The soloist was Elsie Breese Mitchell, who sang lyrics by Marianne Genet, Gertrude Martin Rohrer and Densmore. These entr'acte numbers won hearty approval and gave the audience an opportunity to recover from the exhausting effort to be dignified while the "Stepping Sisters" were strutting their stuff.

HOW ECZEMA IS CONQUERED

You can banish every trace of annoying Eczema and banish it in an astonishingly short time—this time next week your skin will be nearly healed and well on the road to enchanting loveliness and beauty—but you must use Peterson's Ointment.

Peterson's possesses such remarkable healing and soothing qualities that minor pimples and blackheads go like magic—that obstinate cases of burning Eczema are gone after a few days' treatment. First application takes out itching and burning.

Virgie Hawkins, of Wallace, Va., writes: "I had a very bad case of Eczema. The eruptions on one of my arms were so bad I couldn't use it. I had the trouble for over a year. I got a box of Peterson's Ointment and in 2 weeks my Eczema had disappeared."

Eczema and itching skin can't withstand the powerfully healing influence of Peterson's Ointment and one 35c box will prove it. All drug stores.

At her home on Long Island four bicycles are stabled—or garaged, or sum'p'n'. ## COMEDY TEAM MAKES LOONEY WHOOPEE IN WARNER

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"Fifty Million Frenchmen" is the new attraction in the Warner. It is a talk and color screen version of the stage musical comedy of the same name. It omits the song and dance stuff and makes a play for the comedy in a big way.

Olsen and Johnson, team of looney funsters, make up much of the show. How they ever escaped the keepers, we don't know, but they certainly are on the loose in Gay Paree. They chase about the streets with what looks like half of the "fifty million Frenchmen" in police uniforms on their trail. They put on a magician act that would have Thurston yelling for a padded cell. And they flee a hospital in their nightshirts, looking like a couple of Lysistrata's soldiers on a spree.

A BRAVE HORSE?

There's another character in the film that puts in a lot of laughs without getting so much as a single closeup. It is Pansy, a racehorsee. It is credited with being so brave that it'll chase all the other horses in first. But it isn't so brave. It runs away from the rest and gets in first itself.

The meager thread of story, which is only there as something for Olsen and Johnson to hang their goofy comics on, involves a silly wager. A wealthy fellow sets about to prove that without money he can get by in Paris and get a certain pretty girl within a limited time.

CAN'T BE WRONG

There are some old gags in the picture. Pursuing cops become stuck in soft asphalt and that sort of thing. And in numerous spots it is as slap-sticky as a Mack Sennet comedy.

William Gaxton, Helen Broderick and Lester Crawford, who were with Olsen and Johnson in the original stage version, and Charles Judels, John Halliday, Claudia Dell and Nat Carr are in the cast.

If, for you, an entertaining picture means just something to laugh at, "Fifty Million Frenchmen" can't be wrong!

SOHO HILL PARK PROPOSED

Development of Gazzams Hill in Soho as a recreational center has been requested of City Council by the Garden Club of Allegheny County.

Recommending immediate planting of shade trees on the site, the club suggests that the park be endowed as a memorial to George Washington.

Five reasons for the city developing the property are given in the communication. They include: Remarkable view of the Triangle, ease of purchase negotiations and accessibility to the downtown.

The present owner, according to the club, plans to cut down the hill and develop it into 20-foot lots, which, the communication states, will mean many more unsightly houses silhouetted against the skyline.

The communication was referred to committee.

Victor McLaglen Is Cast Opposite Elissa Landi In Prison Film

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1931, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, April 7.

Fox's talk about big plans for Elissa Landi was no idle chatter.

In addition to hiring Adela Rogers Hyland to write a prison story for the Austrian actress, they are assigning Victor McLaglen to play opposite her. And more of the same thing, they will furnish Spencer Tracy and El Brendel for comedy relief.

The story goes under the name of "Wicked," but this is subject to change.

Vic McLaglen

Alan Dwan will be the star's picture, which be the star's third in this country. John Considine has been given the important assignment of producing "Wicked."

PERSISTENT PRESS

Great excitement was caused at First National this week when a local radio station broadcast one of those fake reports that Douglass Fairbanks, Jr., had been killed. Just as messengers were returning from the back lot with Doug's personal assurance he was still alive, a downtown reporter got the publicity department on the phone:

"It is true that Doug, Jr., has been killed?" he cried.

"No," replied the press agent. "Well, who is dead?"

LATEST GOSSIP

As exclusively predicted in this column, today is Tuesday.....It develops that Will Rogers, Jr., will not be a reporter, after all. He would rather be a "printer's devil"... That doesn't spoil my observation for last week. There probably are even fewer polo-playing "printer's devils" than there are reporters who follow the sport... According to word reaching Fox, Charles Farrell and Virginia Valli will be back about May 1... Since my item on Thursday, Frank Fay has replaced Conrad Nagel as the lead in the first Masquer's Club comedy. The company is working Sundays so as to assemble the former Keystone cops, many of whom are celebrities today... Blanche Sweet writes her sketch is booked solid until September, and that she expects to do a play in the fall. Incidentally, she and Mickey Neilan, formerly her husband, were seen having lunch together in New York... Something new in place-cards was introduced to Hollywood when blonde and beautiful Natalie Moorhead gave an Easter dinner with live baby chicks at each plate. They were dyed various colors... John Barrymore escaped serious injury when he fell off a parallel on the set at Warners.

Charles Farrell

"ALL QUIET" OKAYED

Uncle Carl Laemmle is elated over the news that the Reichstag has lifted the ban on "All Quiet on the Western Front" in Germany. Heretofore the anti-war film has been shown in bordering countries and special trains have been run from Germany.

Representatives of Universal also cable that the former Crown Prince Wilhelm saw the picture last week in Holland, and that the Prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George, were guests of honor at a showing in Sao Paolo, Brazil.

This film promises to be the biggest money-maker, as well as the finest artistic achievement, in Uncle Carl Laemmle's colorful career in the motion picture industry.

LATE STARTS FOR SEVERAL HURLERS

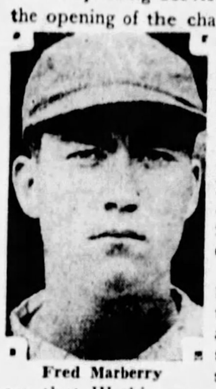
THE PIRATES, WHO will have to struggle along without the pitching services of Steve Swetonic for some time after the opening of the championship season one week from today, will not be the only club to be deprived of the services of a valuable hurler in the first stages of the pennant fighting. It looks as if even the great George Earnshaw, the iron man of the American League, will be a late starter for the Athletics, and there is no telling how long it will take George Pipgras, of the Yankees, to recover his form in full following an operation for appendicitis less than two months ago.



Fred Marberry

Alphonse Thomas, of the White Sox, has been unable to put much on the ball and will hardly be available for anything approaching regular work for some time. Several other clubs report slabmen on the ailing list. Indications are that Washington will be one of the hardest hit in that department, for not only has Fred Marberry failed to round into form, but there is danger that Ad Liska may not be of much service during the entire season.

MANAGER WALTER JOHNSON says Marberry is Washington's biggest slab problem. The pilot admits that Fred's spirit is good and that he has been working faithfully, but not with any gratifying results, as he is unquestionably farther behind his best form than any of the other Senatorial flingers. Johnson figures that the clubs's pennant chances depend largely on what Marberry is able to accomplish.

Liska is certain to be close to a total loss at the start of the season, and it is feared he will not prove much of a slab asset at any time during the year. A sore arm which has stubbornly refused to respond to treatment has kept the underhand pitcher from doing enough work to put him in shape, and he may be out for a long time. Johnson has been relying mainly on his pitchers to give the A's a battle for the pennant, and the condition of Marberry and Liska threatens to have a harmful effect upon the Senators' chances.

MOST BASEBALL MEN are doping out the National League pennant race to be a five-club affair, but Rabbit Maranville can't see it that way. The veteran shortstop of the Braves figures there will be only three clubs in the hunt. He does not look for either Pittsburgh or New York to be a serious threat.

Maranville names the Robins, Cubs and Cardinals as the contenders for the flag, and expresses the opinion that the Pirates and Giants will have to do some lively stepping or the Braves may beat out both of them for fourth place.

"IT'S GOING TO be just a three-way race," the Rabbit predicts. "There are Brooklyn, Chicago and St. Louis. I can't see any others in the fight. The Giants are standing still this year—pitchers and that outfield experiment, you know. Say, we're likely to spring the big surprise of 1931. Yes, I mean the Braves. I think they have a good chance to beat out both Pittsburgh and New York. McKechnie has added power to the club and I believe we'll slip in ahead of the Pirates and Giants in the first division. Just remember in the fall what the old Rabbit told you in the spring."

West Byng

WHEN THE LIST of honor men in basketball at the Naval Academy is issued shortly, it is likely to show that West Byng has won his letter in that sport, following similar successes in football and baseball, and has thus become the only three-letter man in the school at present.

For three seasons Byng has been in all the big games at end on the Navy football team. For two seasons he has been a hard-hitting outfielder on the baseball team, and this year has been shifted to first base. As a guard on the basketball team he was not a first-stringer, but it is understood that he got into enough big games to merit a letter. With a foundation of letters in three major sports, Byng will have a big lead over all others for the supreme athletic honor at Annapolis, the award of the Navy Athletic Association sword for general excellence in sports.

WINDSOR NEEDS ONLY a tie in the final hockey battle with Buffalo tonight to capture the championship of the International League, but with the game scheduled for Buffalo ice it is likely to prove a hard matter to keep the Bisons from taking the game and the title.

A crucial stage in the struggle between the Chicago Blackhawks and Les Canadiens for the Stanley Cup also will be reached tonight in Montreal when the third game in the series will be played. The first two bouts in Chicago resulted in an even break. Tonight's winners will have a big edge, as they will be required only to split even in the remaining two games (if five are played), whereas the losers tonight will have to win two straight to capture the trophy.

NO GAME IS so delicately susceptible to outside influences as billiards. It is well known that billiard balls must be kept at a certain temperature to insure their responding accurately to the touch of the player, and a study made by Ray Fessenden, of Chicago, one of the country's outstanding amateur cueists, shows how easily the temperature may be affected. He says he has found that the presence of half a dozen additional spectators in a billiard gallery will sometimes throw a player off his game. "The minute rise in temperature brought about by body heat," he asserts, "will often cause the sensitive ivory balls to freeze instead of rebounding sharply."

IN PURCHASING FROM Hyman Caplin for $15,000 the contract of Al Singer, which has four years to run, Leon See is said to have represented the Broadway group that controls Primo Carnera in this country. Singer says he will now disprove Caplin's charges that he quit to both Jimmy McLarnin and Tony Canoneri when those two fighters were credited with knockouts over him.

As Bill Duffy makes the arrangements for Carnera, eastern boxing men expect to see him handling Singer hereafter. The men behind Carnera and Singer are said also to be interested in Maxie Rosenbloom, who would have lost his light-heavyweight title with the decision to Bill Jones here last night if the Negro had not been made to come in above the class weight limit, and in addition they have an interest in James J. Braddock and Kid Francis.

Lionel Hitchman

WILLIAM C. DALY, veteran turfman, who died at his Brooklyn home at the age of 92 after a racing career of 70 years, developed many star jockeys during his long connection with the game.

Among those whom Father Bill taught to ride were such one-time greats as Snapper Garrison, Jimmy McLaughlin, Winnie O'Connor, Johnny Lamley, Eddie Mosher and Midget Moran.

THE REPORT THAT Lionel Hitchman, captain and defense star of the Boston club in the National Hockey League, well known here in the days of the Pirate ice team, was to be given his release and would become manager of the Detroit Falcons to succeed Jack Adams, is denied by Charles F. Adams, president of the Burins. The Boston magnate says he has not at any time considered the sale, trade or release of Hitchman, but intends to put him in the care of his own personal physician and is confident that Lionel will be back in his best form next season after a physical defect which handicapped him during the recent campaign has been remedied. Adams looks for Hitchman to be one of the main cogs in the Hub machine again next winter.

Maxie Rosenbloom's glamorous past along the Primrose Trail finally caught up with him at Motor Square Garden last night at the same time that a certain dark gentleman from Philadelphia, and formerly of Pittsburgh, named Billy Jones, crossed his path, and the pair combined to hand the light-heavyweight champion of the world, and New York's bright lights belt, the first defeat in his many appearances in these parts, over a period of several years.

Maxie's title did not go with the referee's decision because it was an overweight match, with Jones coming in at 176 pounds, one pound over the light-heavyweight class limit, and Rosenbloom scaling 179

This writer was one of those who did not concur in the decision, which received a joyous reception from the crowd and Jones. From this corner, it seemed that Maxie, after appearing ready for the cleaners in a hectic eighth round, came from behind and edged out the fight in the last two frames, in the first of which he completely turned the tables and battered and punished Jones as badly as the latter had plastered him in the preceding session, and, in the final frame, giving Jones a boxing lesson from bell to bell as he smothered Billy's rushes and stabbed and chopped to the head at will.

JUDGES DISAGREE

The judges disagreed, Frank Ferris voting for Rosenbloom and Frank Brown casting his ballot with that of Referee Red Robinson. Few of the fans present will shed any tears over the ill luck of Rosenbloom, who has slipped woefully since he last appeared here, before winning the title. He did not seem to be in any too good condition, and, in the early rounds, drew boos from the fans he formerly delighted with his showmanship, as he stalled and messed about, fighting only in flashes. Jones was the earnest worker, carrying the battle to Rosenbloom as if he never had been tipped off that Maxie was the champion. However, Rosenbloom, as bad as he was, had enough in reserve to come on and outlast his younger and stronger and more willing foe in what should have been the deciding stage, and he has no one to blame for his official defeat but himself. Had he tincanned less in some of the rounds, his good work in the others would have been better appreciated. This is taking away nothing from Jones, who gave his best all of the way against a master ring strategist, yet appeared to be genuinely surprised when the announcer, Harry Klaas, pointed to him as the winner at the finish.

SEE-SAW BATTLE

It was a see-saw battle on the scoring end. Rosenbloom took the first round by a narrow margin, lost the next two by fair margins, came back to win the fourth, lost the fifth, took the sixth and lost the seventh, all of the last four of these being close. That sent Jones into the eighth round with a slight edge, and, in this frame, he battered Rosenbloom from pillar to post, cutting his left eye and keeping on top of him all the way. Maxie having to fight his way out of a jam in a neutral corner after being satisfied to seek cover from the storm.

At the end of that round, you wouldn't have given a dime for Maxie's chances of winning the decision, but what did he do but come right back out of his trance in the next round to virtually duplicate the beating to Jones, cut eye and all, and Jones never had a chance to get started as Maxie stabbed him with lefts and chopped him with so many rights on the jaw that Billy was stumbling and being turned about by the impact. Then, with the decision hinging on the last round, Rosey continued to outgeneral Jones, stabbing and chopping to the head as the Negro rushed, and tying him inside.

At the finish they had five rounds apiece, with only the last three decisive, and, of these, Jones had the eighth by a city block margin, while Rosey took the last two by similar edges. It was that close, with no one begrudging Jones, who was bleeding from the mouth most of the way, the break in the decision for his fine initial showing before the fans of his former home town and in view of Rosenbloom's indifferent work in the early rounds. There were no knockdowns, but Rosey hit the deck when he

NEW MANAGER AT SHANNOPIN

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Real live news from the Shannopin Country Club. Dr. J. L. McBride, chairman of the grounds committee, has announced that the links will be opened for play April 18—sooner if possible, weather permitting. Of course, they are playing at Shannopin every day, but temporary greens are in order until the official edict is issued.

Shannopin also has announced the acquisition of a new steward and manager to succeed the late, popular Frank Ganser. He is Frank Torsatti, born in Italy, 1884. Torsatti started in Nice, France, when only 16, at the Hotel Regina, as cafe waiter. Later he worked in Paris at the Grand Hotel and in London at the Savoy and Cecil hotels. He has been in the United States since 1906 and has had broad experience in catering to discriminating clientele, having, among other positions, been affiliated with the Waldorf Astoria and the Lido Venice Club in New York.

MANNING ON JOB

Mrs. Torsatti will be at Shannopin in the capacity of housekeeper. Officials announce Mrs. Torsatti as "an attractive woman, and we predict that the ladies of Shannopin will be pleased with her efforts to help them enjoy the club."

Charley Manning, the club's pro, has returned from the South and is back on the job.

L. A. Hubach has been re-elected president, F. L. Stout is vice president, O. G. Butts is secretary, and A. J. Markland, treasurer.

The board of governors includes, other than the officers, John I. Thompson, first president of the club; Elmer B. Thomas, T. G. Hodgdon, Dr. McBride, J. T. MacGregor, L. C. Lyon, R. L. Thompson, Jr., A. O. Pearce, W. Burney Thomas, W. F. Knox and Hays M. Junkin.

SPORT SHORTS

COLUMBUS, — (AP.) — Bushy Graham, Utica, N. Y., former bantamweight champion, scored a technical knockout over Johnny Farr, Cleveland, in the eighth round here last night. Referee Jack Dempsey stopped the bout after Farr had been floored eight times in the final round.

CHICAGO. — (AP.) — Hard Luck Bruder, captain of the 1930 Northwestern championship football team, made his debut last night in the professional wrestling trade, with a quick victory over Rudy Hoffman, Chicago heavyweight. Bruder pinned Hoffman in 2 minutes 38 seconds of a 30-minute time limit match.

Tee to Green

The qualifying round for the national amateur championship will be played at the Pittsburgh Field Club, Tuesday, July 28. It will be a 36-hole test, and the number of qualifiers will be determined by the number of entries. Entries should be made to the U. S. G. A., 110 East Forty-second street, New York, accompanied by a fee of $5. The tournament proper will be staged in Chicago, August 31 to September 5.

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph announced several months ago that Al McBride was to be signed as golf pro at the South County Park links. Yesterday the announcement materialized when Al was given his papers of appointment. McBride has been working "on the scene of action" for the last couple of weeks. He has a fine home near the course, he says, and is going to move in tomorrow.

The pros are starting to wander back to town. The McKay brothers, Dave, of the Field club, and Bill, of Longue Vue, are back from a tour of the South.

John J. (Jack) Dillon, of Stanton Heights, is home again after his trip through Florida and Cuba. Louis Tesh still kids him about his playing the ponies and the doggies.

Macks Score First Win Over Phillies

PHILADELPHIA, April 7. — (AP.)—After two straight defeats in the annual spring series with the Phillies, the Mackmen scored their first triumph by whipping the Shottonmen, 3 to 2, here yesterday.

Hank McDonald, 19-year-old righthander from the Pacific Coast League, went the full distance for the world champions. The Phils divided the pitching duties between Watt and Dudley, Watt being the loser.

FLOOR REFEREES DINE TONIGHT

By JESS CARVER

The Western Pennsylvania Basketball Officials' Association will celebrate the close of its season tonight at 6:30 with a banquet in the Green Castle Hotel, Babcock boulevard. Tomorrow night the Pittsburgh Officials' Club will hold its banquet in the Roosevelt Hotel.

The gathering is going to be especially worthwhile, not only because of the delectable viands to be served, but because of some talks that are to be made when the after-dinner cigars (hint to committee to provide after-dinner cigars) are in full blast. Cal Bolster is going to make one of the talks. Its bound to be worth while.

The committee in charge of the affair includes Red Byers, as chairman, Rody Ruttenbush and Dave Fawcett. There's "trips" for you—draw to 'em.

HOW MANY RECORDS?

The boys shattered five records last year on the occasion of the sixteenth annual University of Pittsburgh interscholastic and university championship swimming meet. Three were broken by schoolboy splashers and two by university contestants.

With a stronger entry list on edge for this year's meet, which will get underway Friday night and wind up Saturday afternoon, Coach Pat Corr expects as many, if not more, marks to be toppled. It is unlikely that there will be as great a percentage cracked as there were in the Tech meet two weeks ago when seven went by the boards, seven records in eight events.

FORM RING TEAM

East Pittsburgh becomes the third Western Pennsylvania high school to take up boxing. Coach Johnny Coleman, former Duquesne University athlete, has formed a ring team and three matches have been arranged.

The East Pittsburghers will inaugurate their campaign against Rankin, April 18. Scraps with Uniontown and the Pitt freshmen will follow.

Pacific Coast League Race Opens Today

SAN FRANCISCO, April 7.—(AP.)—Baseball's 1931 race for the Pacific Coast League pennant gets under way today with the eight clubs more evenly matched than last year and a 26 weeks straight schedule in place of the split season in effect since 1928.

KNOCKOUTS MARK SHOW

Two knockouts marked the six-bout amateur boxing card staged in conjunction with the stag smoker of the Duquesne Light Company Distribution Department, in the Duquesne Building, last night. Johnny Ungermann and Dave Mullins registered the knockouts. The summary:

118-pound class—Fred Coople, Homestead Library A. C., won from Frank Draganzi, Monaca A. C., three rounds, decision. Walter Stein, St. Boniface Lyceum, won from Rudy Van Covish, Monaca A. C., three rounds, decision.

TOURNEY POSTPONED

The annual tenpin tournament under the auspices of the Votel Brothers in East Pittsburgh, originally scheduled to open yesterday, has been postponed until tomorrow.

BUCS, TIGERS SET TO CLASH TOMORROW

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

DENVER, April 7.—Homeward bound, the Pirates reached this famous mid-western city this afternoon. If everything goes well the Pittsburghers will be at their Kansas City destination in the morning and all hands will be glad to disembark even though the journey be a pleasant one.

The baseball flyer is hauling six sleepers, which are occupied by members of the Pittsburgh and Detroit clubs. The athletes and others are well cared for, there being much merriment on the train.

CONCERNED OVER WEATHER

The well conditioned ball-gamers are somewhat concerned over the grade of weather which will greet them at the home of the Blues. Cold breezes have been playing around Kansas City, and a game under wintry condition would be anything but tasteful to all concerned. Exposure might take the edge off the fine condition now enjoyed by the diamond tourists.

The schedule provides a single game at Kansas City tomorrow afternoon, this to be followed by another interleague fight at Decatur, Ill., on the following day. The itinerary calls for arrival at Detroit on Friday morning. There the Pirates and Tigers will fight it out in three contests for the edification of the fans of the great automobile city.

Manager Ens will use Ervin Brame and Larry French on the mound against the Jungaleers tomorrow. The enemy is likely to counter with Victor Sorrell, a capable righthander.

BRAME ENS' CHOICE

Sending Brame to the mound for a curtailed trick at this time would indicate the tall Kentuckian is Ens' first choice for the opening game in Chicago. Ervin would have five full days for relaxation and preparation for the big stuff of next Tuesday. However, this plan is not definite. Heinie Meine and Remy also will be set for the slip in the jumpoff game, it being the plan of the skipper to get these veterans into action before the series with the Tigers is completed.

The three contests scheduled between the Buccos and Bengals in Detroit are regarded as big stuff by the players of both teams. In the event of good baseball weather, these scraps are likely to be interesting.

Although the achievements of the Pirates on the Coast were nothing to write home about, so far as conquest is concerned, Manager Ens is jubilant over the future of his team. It is true the Freebooters were able to do no better than break even in 24 battles, but they acquired a fine state of condition, and that is the real motive of spring training.

P. WANER IMPROVES

Paul Waner is getting along so well he is quite sure he will be able to be at his post one week from today. Paul has not had as much work as he would have desired, but he does not need much preparation when he is in health. Brother Lloyd has been nursed along smartly by Manager Ens, and Lloyd should be ready to do his stuff right from the start. Grantham's legs bother him, and Pie Traynor's arm is not what it ought to be, but these two infield veterans will be on the job when the bells sound if they are as sound as they are at this writing.

ROUSH TO JOIN REDS

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 7.—(AP.)—Eddie Roush has notified Dan Howley, Cincinnati Red pilot, that he will join the club in Cincinnati Thursday, prepared to resume his old position in center field. Roush, who was idle last season because he and the New York Giants management could not reach a salary agreement, has been working out with the Hartford club of the Eastern League, in Macon, Ga., to get in condition while the Reds came north.

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 7.—The teams are working their way up the north frigid zone, and if it's any more winterish than the South has been this springtime, we will be shoveling a path to first base for the opening game.

Nick Altrock

But maybe Landis will cancel the whole season.

I see the experts have picked the Cards and A's to cop again this year, so the rest of us clubs will play through the season just for the train rides and the grub.

Well, Chuck Klein got a three-year contract out of the Phillies for $40,000. That is the equivalent of blowing the safe of any other club.

LOCAL AMATEURS BEATEN IN BOSTON RING

Turtle Creek Community Nine to Make Bid for West Penn Crown

TWO DISTRICT MITTMEN IN SEMI-FINALS

BOSTON, April 7.—(AP.)—A dozen battlers from the Boston district battered their way into the semi-finals of the junior national amateur boxing championship tourney here last night after five hours of glove swinging with title aspirants from 15 other cities.

An even 30 first and second round bouts were run off, and six of them ended in knockouts.

Robert Perry, Salt Lake City, 126, who traveled the longest distance of any in the tournament, met with disaster in the first round of his opening bout. He drew Dan Tardugno, experienced Lawrence battler, and was counted out after going down under a heavy right to the chin. The victor's brother Michael, a student at Georgetown University, followed him into the ring and pounded out a three-round decision over Fritz Zivic, of Pittsburgh.

Jame Linehan, of Boston, took the measure of Eddie Zivic, of Pittsburgh, in their three-round setto in the 135-pound class, while in a second-round bout, Fritz Zivic, Eddie's brother, lost to Michael Tardugno, of Washington, in the 126-pound division.

Billy Marone, of Detroit, defeated Don Asto, of the Sands A. C., Uniontown, Pa., in the 135-pound class. Charles Cravotta, of Uniontown, Pa., bowed to Joe Delmont, of Boston, in the 146-pound go. The summary:

SHARPSBURG PLAY OPENS

The Sharpsburg Y ended the second round of its A. A. U. basketball tourney last night with Sharpsburg Y defeating the Aspinwall Aces by a 31-24 score. Lou Conley's trimming the Penn Pals by a 30-25 margin, and Chmiel Five trouncing the Guyasuta Indians by a 47-22 result. The tourney will be continued tonight.

Gipp, Rockne Ace, Resourceful Leader, Big Aid to Knute

ROCKNE'S LIFE STORY—SIXTH INSTALMENT

By WARREN BROWN

(Copyright, 1931, Chicago Herald and Examiner.)

No attempt to set down in writing the story of Knute Rockne can hope to be at all comprehensive without inclusion of a mass of detail about the career of George Gipp at Notre Dame.

And if, for a while this narrative seems to digress, with more of Gipp than of Rockne, the digression is defensible, Rockne himself would have had it so.

Knute Rockne

The regard in which Gipp was held by the players who had contact with him at Notre Dame was one of awe.

Whatever intimacies they had with Gipp were limited almost entirely to the playing field.

This is illustrated aptly by Roger Kiley, who was an end on the teams of Gipp's time.

"We were returning from a game with Army," Kiley says, "and Gipp happened to drop into a seat opposite me and began talking. He sat there for a long time. What he talked about, I'm afraid I don't know.

"All the time I felt like pinching myself. Gipp was talking to me! The great Gipp. I know that I wrote home to my folks as soon as possible, telling them about the incident.

"Understand that I had been on the squad for two years. That was my reaction. I don't think the reaction of the other boys was much different.

"We knew that if any of us went to Gipp, he would do anything we wanted. But we just couldn't get up the nerve, I guess.

"He seemed to be one of us, and yet a man apart."

On the field Gipp was the leader.

In the first game he played, Kiley was thrown a pass by Gipp and dropped it.

CAN'T LEADER

"I felt then," says Kiley, "that I had obtained the chance for which I had been praying—and then spoiled it all.

"When we started to line up again Gipp came over and stopped me.

"'Nervous?' he said.

"I didn't have to tell him that I was.

"'I'm going to throw you another pass,' Gipp said. 'It's going to be a soft one. You can't miss it, if you try.'"

Gipp threw the pass. Kiley caught it. Others were thrown, and Kiley caught them.

"After the game," Kiley continues, "Gipp stopped me as we were leaving the field.

"'You're a great pass receiver,' he said. 'I knew darn well that I wasn't, but there it was. Gipp said it.

"'Come out a little ahead of regular practice, for a while,' he said, 'and we'll go through some more of this stuff. We'll pass some of these teams blind before we get through with them.'"

That was one phase of Gipp.

There is another not entirely unlike this, that has to do with the success of Chet Wynne, whose final rush through to recognition was made only after a struggle that must have disheartened any less courageous lad.

Wynne's early football experience was marred by fumbling. He was a great defensive back, one of the greatest in Notre Dame's history. He had all the equipment for a great offensive back, but the fumbles recurred with damning regularity.

Rockne appealed to lose patience with him.

Chet drifted back until he was almost lost in the shuffling of a third or fourth string group.

JUDGMENT AIDS ROCK

Gipp always insisted that Wynne had possibilities, and Rockne unquestionably knew that, but went about his own method of letting Chet know what a horrible thing a fumble was.

He used to drop by the group to which Wynne was sentenced, make some remark about the fumblers, and pass on.

Earl Walsh, the regular fullback, was hurt, prior to the Nebraska game, and, the story goes, Gipp made a plea that Wynne be taken along.

That much decided. Gipp sought out Wynne, advised him to tuck a football under his arm, and carry it around all day, if necessary, to get used to hanging onto it.

Whether this be true, or whether it was the Gipp influence, or another exposition of the psychological urge of Rockne, the fact remains that Wynne rose to greatness in that Nebraska game.

In this period, Norman Barry was struggling for a job on the regular team. He had been on the second squad, and showed marked ability. He was suddenly placed in with the regulars, whose backs had some series of plays which hadn't been given to the second string.

NOT TO BE FOOLED

Barry had done so well that his name was included in those who were to leave on a trip, when the squad came out for its final practice.

"I did all right, until they started running off those new plays," Barry says. "I know I should have admitted I wasn't familiar with them, but I was afraid to do it, thinking I might lose my chance.

"Rock came over right away and asked what was the matter, and if I didn't know the plays.

"I could have told him then, and it would have been all right. But I didn't, and tried to bluff through. The result was a mess. A third time it was just the same. Then Rock came back.

"'You know the plays?' he said.

"Sure, I knew them.

"'Got your suit case all packed for the trip, have you?' he asked.

"I told him I had.

"'Well, that's fine,' he said, 'Because we won't need you for any more practice, today, and you'll have plenty of time to unpack it. You're not going on the trip.'"

It was in the Gipp era that the "Dead Man's Play" put in an appearance, and Gipp figured in it very prominently.

DEAD MAN'S PLAY

Joe Brandy, quarterback, had faked a run against Nebraska, and as he lay writhing on the ground, the whole Notre Dame team got onside.

Gipp stood back a little, and called to Brandy:

"Are you hurt badly, Joe?"

At the name Joe, Brandy flipped the ball back to Gipp, who was off like a shot, and past the startled Cornhuskers for a touchdown, before realization came to them that the whole episode was just another of those Notre Dame tricks.

This play was executed all right.

CHAMPION DOWN IN BOUT HERE

ROSENBLOOM FALLS AFTER MISSING SWING IN THIRD ROUND

JONES BEATS ROSENBLOOM

SMALLWOOD OUTRUNS FOE

Chet Smallwood, Akron southpaw, 137½, received an undeserved referee's decision over Len Porter, Negro, of Los Angeles, 136½ pounds, in the eight-round semi-final, in which he marathoned all around the ring with Porter in pursuit and took a fine beating after the third round, when he began to slow down under a body attack. Judge Brown voted for Porter, with Judge Ferris and Referee Joe Keally scoring for Smallwood.

Joey Spiegel, of Uniontown, 141, defeated Paul Oger, of Moundsville, W. Va., 147½, in a messy six-round second bout, and Freddie Haverlac, of New York, 133½, rightly won the decision of Referee Keally over Joey Boler, of Erie, 134¼, after the judges had disagreed in the first bout. Brown voting for a draw and Ferris for Boler. Boler, who boxed southpaw fashion in the first round and then turned around, rallied to win the fourth and sixth rounds, but was decisively outboxed and outpunched by Haverlac in the other sessions. The crowd strung along with Boler on account of his strong finish and booed the decision to such an extent that the announcer wisely gave up trying to introduce the principals in the second bout.

CHAMP DEFIES COMMISSION

The house was only fair, despite the fact that a world champion was a principal in the main bout. Rosenbloom, by the way, defied the commission rules and entered the ring wearing an old-fashioned protection cup instead of the bulky apparatus prescribed by the board. Referee Robinson put it up to Commissioner Boyle at the ringside whether or not he wanted to let him box under the circumstances and was given the word to go ahead with the bout. If Maxie, because he is champion, is not penalized for flouting the rule, other boxers who object to the new official type cup also should be permitted to go on using the older ones, and many of them do object.

It was announced that Midget Wolgast, world flyweight championship claimant, will play a return engagement at the Garden next Monday night, against Archie Bell, of New York. Both recently have defeated Willie Davies in the Garden ring.

Between Rounds

Tommy Ryan, former star bantamweight, of Duquesne, is the manager of Baby Face Matty Matheson, of Buffalo, whom the wants to show here against any of the 118-pounders. Jimmy Thomas preferred. Matty has been beaten only twice in 31 bouts. A Scotch-Canadian, he is the former amateur flyweight champion of Canada and touted as a great crowd-pleaser.

The Tommy Freeman-Young Jack Thompson welterweight championship fight in Cleveland next Tuesday night will be staged in the Public Auditorium, and not outdoors, as appears to be the popular conception.

Promoter Apples Meyers will complete his card today for his Eddie Brannon-Ray Kiser show in the Moose Temple Friday night by closing for his opening bout. He has Howard Mitchell, of Cincinnati, against Marty Gormick, of McKeesport, in the semi-final, and has Ace Hehe, a hard-fighting flyweight from Cincinnati, in with Tony Marino, of Duquesne, for the second bout.

Tiger West, Monessen middleweight, boxes Hans Roberts, Brookline welterweight, in the six-round main bout of a smoker show under the auspices of the Brookline C. C. in Allentown Turner Hall, Thursday night.

Following is the card of amateur bouts to be offered under the auspices of American Legion Post No. 41 Drum and Bugle Corps in the Moose Temple tonight: Sparky Ewalt vs. Dan Pulley, Dutch Weir vs. Slim Kovasc, Tarzan Lisban vs. Butch Jacobs, Mannie Letsch vs. Eddie Nichols, George Lupimacci vs. Jack Snyder, Joe Maico vs. Anthony Zelin and Herbie Chickos vs. Johnny Durso. Singing and other entertainment also are on the program.

WINTERS PILOT OF NEW CLUB IN VALLEY

By TOM BIRKS

Coming into fast sandlot baseball for the first time, the Turtle Creek Community Baseball Club is expected to be a serious contender for the West Penn title.

Under the able leadership of Dutch Winters, well known in Turtle Creek valley, who has been a member of many championship outfits, the Community club, with the backing of the business men, is out to get Turtle Creek in the sandlot limelight.

Winters feels that much competition is ahead in Honus Wagner's star loop. He has built up a good club, and five pitchers. Lefty Hurst, former Homestead Aces' star; Jones, McKee, Holmes and Purp have been signed.

STARS TRYING OUT

George McClelland, the former Triple Link star, and Garlow and Charlton will assume the catchers' duties.

A number of first-class sandlotters will be fighting for infield berths. Thompson, Coulter, Williams, Goss, Stanek, Prehoda, Graham, Brodbeck, Kariss, of last year's Dan Heep club; Johnson, formerly of North Bessemer, and Ben Haldy, who formerly did his stuff with Jack Fertig, at Homestead, are trying out.

Murphy, Thompson, Hicks, Preistley and Manager Winters will be snaring possible baseball in the outfield.

SMILERS CHANGE NAME

Winters expects to open the season at the Turtle Creek Stadium Saturday, May 2. Teams wishing to book games with the Community Builders should get in touch with Walter Dinbitz, 508 Penn avenue, Turtle Creek, or call Valley 9764.

Johnny Dunsky, manager of the Pleasant Valley Smilers, of the City League, has announced that that club has changed its name to the North Side Bucks.

Bunts

Butch Erdeljack, former sandlot player and independent gridiron star, died on Saturday. Butch was one of the outstanding players in the district, and was a member of Joe Zivic's Etna Sycamores.

There will be a meeting of the Honus Wagner Westmoreland County League at the Hotel Miller, Latrobe, Thursday evening, with six clubs ready to go. Wagner expects to close the loop with two other clubs posting forfeits.

RAZOR AD-VENTURES by don herold

IT worried me at first that my new Gem Micromatic Razor didn't hurt. I was shaved before I knew it.

I was one of those men who think they have to suffer through their shaves. I had the hero habit. I was actually proud of that morning shaving pain.

So when I got this new Gem Razor and it went through my whiskers as if it were greased, I missed something. I missed my suffer. You can't get self-pity out of this razor—all you can get is perfect shaves.

It's a new sensation in shaving that you ought to gamble a dollar to try . . . the new one-piece Gem Micromatic with patented features—automatic handle-twist adjustment, and micro-perfect surgical steel blades.

STOCK MARKET CONTINUES TO DECLINE

Volume of Trading Again Meager, While Losses Are Moderate; Steel Recovers

NEW YORK, April 7.—(AP.)—The almost uninterrupted shrinkage of share values progressed well into its third week today, although its pace was slow and faltering.

The decline was moderate, and the volume of trading was again meager. The volume of stock for sale was too small to be encouraging to the bears, but fresh dividend cutting and expectation of a dismal display of first quarter earnings statements left the bull camp all but deserted. Short covering, however, caused a sluggish rally in the early afternoon.

There were numerous declines of 1 to 5 points. U. S. Steel sagged a point to a new 1931 low at 136, then recovered. Last year's minimum was 134⅜. Rails were conspicuously weak again.

The market has now lost virtually all of its February gain and, as measured by price indices, is within a few points of its January low.

Business and trade news was of an inconclusive character. One custom smelter offered copper at 9½ cents a pound, the 36-year low record established last autumn, but the copper market was so dull the price had little significance. Silver again weakened, losing ¼ of a cent an ounce.

Preliminary figures indicate that last week's petroleum statistics will show one of the best reductions in crude output of the year, which is encouraging, at a time when representatives of the various oil states are meeting in Washington to devise means of stabilizing the industry.

Wall streetis hearing much discussion of wage scales at this time, and despite the stern opposition to reductions which has been expressed in important industrial and governmental circles, the depression has worn on so long that some bankers and business executives seem to despair of maintaining current rates.

Credit was more plentiful. Call money renewed at 2 per cent, after climbing to 2½ yesterday, and was in good supply.

BANCAMERICA GETS BONDS

NEW YORK, April 7. — The Bancamerica-Blair Corporation, of New York, with a bid of 100.082, was the highest bidder for the $34,975,000 serial gold bond of the State of New York, sold by Comptroller Morris S. Tremaine today.

The basis rate, 3.46 per cent, was the lowest net interest cost to the state in its history. The bonds will bear interest principally at 3½ per cent and some will be 3¼ per cent.

A. H. Wiggin Takes Seat on Fox Board

NEW YORK, April 7.—Fox Film Corporation financing shortly will involve $75,000,000, of which $30,000,000 will be convertible debentures.

At a special meeting of directors of Fox Film Corporation and General Theaters Equipment, Albert H. Wiggins, chairman of the Chase National Bank, was elected a director. C. B. Stuart and Ernest Niver, of Halsey Stuart & Co., voluntarily retire as directors of both companies.

Things They Do Better in Great Britain.

By B. C. FORBES

Mr. Forbes

A CABBY in Panama many years ago, when I expressed astonishment at seeing tables and chairs brought out and set on the sidewalk for the evening meal, rebuked me, "Every country has its own customs."

In this column a few days ago things the United States does better than Britain were described by an observant visiting Briton, William G. Fern. Requests having been received for his criticisms and for his illustrations of things Britain does better, the following are the highlights on this score, from his book "Lessons From a Self-Made Continent":

"PERHAPS WE are overgoverned in Great Britain. Perhaps we have allowed ourselves to be so ordered and hounded that we have lost our initiative. But at least we have law and order.

"Our standard of honesty is so incomparably superior in Britain that the difference has to be experienced to be realized.

"THERE IS no doubt that the average American employe in production works faster than in Britain, but I should not say that was true in offices. A tremendous amount of chatter went on, and I should say, from my observation, that more work and better work was carried out in British offices.

"SUCCESS IS sweet in America, but failure is the bitterest of dregs in the cup of American life. Failure is the greatest of all sins. We try, perhaps ineffectively, but we do try, to bind the wounds, succor the spirit, and lend a hand.

"At least, we do not ignore; we seek to find the way to help the fellow who cannot help himself. America is the hardest country in the world, if you fail. It rewards you more richly than any other if you succeed."

AFTER CRITICIZING our traffic control, our pavement laying, the inability of Americans to relax properly—"To sit down and chat quietly about things, as we have learned to do in our home life, is something that is rare in America"—our lack of progress in improving Pullman sleepers, the condition of our public parks, America's failure to "grapple systematically with the unemployment problem," he goes on:

"The British banking system is still the finest in the world, as a system.

"Our family ties are knit closer together—our business relationships, too, as every new salesman knows. We are loyal to our old men in industry, although, to be fair, America has swerved toward this consideration splendidly in 19 years.

"With all her hard-hitting, Britain has infinite respect for the man who comes up again dancing on his toes, willing to take all that comes.

"Recent to a Britisher is five years ago. 'Recent' to an American is but five minutes. If a man has been with a firm in Britain for 10 years, he has 'just' joined. If a man stays with a firm any time in America, he is an exhibit.

"I AM CONFIDENT we are more thorough in Britain. We finish things off better, and, once started, we see things through. We build to stay.

"I doubted, after my close observation, whether the static courage of the American is anything like so marked as that of the Britisher. My experience of Britain has taught me that, the harder the game, the grimmer the jaw."

NOTWITHSTANDING the foregoing, Mr. Fern makes this candid admission:

"Yet, I would, if I could, give any son of mine three or five years' experience of American life.

"I am sure the lessons of self-reliance, vision, determination, faith, enthusiasm, loyalty, construction, courage, optimism and ambition would not go unheeded, and would help him mold a destiny in which he would forever realize—the Lord helps those who help themselves.

"I met many Englishmen in the States, of course, but I did not meet one who was not better off than he would have been in England."

Steel Trade Decline Shown Last Week

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

FURTHER DECLINES IN MILL activity have been responsible for uncertainty about the prospects of the steel industry. From the beginning of the year up to about two weeks ago steel production was on a steady ascending scale. While the rate of gain was not great it could at least be taken as a favorable indication of the future.

The decline in production two weeks ago at first was thought to be only a temporary adjustment due to the close hand to mouth buying policy of most consumers. The continued decline in output last week has cast doubt over the ability of the industry to show further improvement during the second quarter.

Since the steel trade reflects activity in a great number of the country's leading industries, the rise or fall of ingot production during the next few weeks will be closely watched in an effort to determine the course of general business activity. While the reduction in output from the peak established about the middle of March has not been large, if it continues it may be considered to be a highly important barometer of the general business situation.

Structural Demand Steady

THE RAILROAD, AUTOMOBILE and construction industries are the largest consumers of steel products. Together they use nearly half of the steel produced in this country. The building industry has been showing a fairly steady demand for steel during recent weeks. The placing of some large orders has been helpful although delivery on these contracts may extend over a long period of time and may not start for several months.

The automobile industry had been slowly increasing its production since the beginning of the year, but the recent break in shipments to Detroit may indicate that many companies are being even more cautious about making more cars. No particular significance was attached to the pause in automobile demand a short time ago, since many motor manufacturers are readjusting production schedules each week to conform to dealers' orders.

Under usual conditions the railroads require their greatest tonnage of steel at the present time to provide material for track work which is started as soon as weather conditions permit. Railroads did not curtail expenditures for maintenance to any great extent last year, but losses of traffic since that time are undoubtedly being reflected in a tendency to do only the absolutely necessary maintenance work. This, of course, is being reflected in their specifications for the delivery of steel even though original contracts may have called for normal tonnages of material.

Prices Uncertain

FOR THE PAST TWO WEEKS it has been difficult to tell just how successful the steel companies have been in establishing their recently announced prices for some of their principal products. While quotations prevailing on shipments during the present quarter may be slightly higher than in the first quarter, it is unlikely that any very marked change will be shown.

Last December an increase in the prices of bars, plates and shapes of $1 a ton to 1.65 cents a pound was announced. Practically all the steel shipped during the first quarter was sold at 1.60 cents a pound. A few weeks ago when a further advance of $1 a ton was announced, it was hoped that the 1.65 cent price would be established for the second quarter and the newly announced price would become effective in the third quarter. With competitive conditions extremely severe the success of this move has been uncertain.

Earnings Small

MOST STEEL COMPANIES failed to earn dividend requirements in the fourth quarter of 1930. Few of them will report better results for the first quarter of the present year since production was only slightly greater and prices were no higher. Prospects for materially helping the situation in the second quarter are slight since the gains in prices will not reach important proportions and the chances for materially improving output are not particularly bright.

SCHOOL TEAMS OPEN RACES

The city scholastic mushball campaign and the annual senior and junior volleyball tournament will get under way this afternoon. In the mushball competition, four games will be played, all of the eight teams in the league swinging into action.

Teams in three sections will begin competition for the volleyball title by participating in first-round games. Semi-finals and finals will be played Friday.

In the mushball competition, Rankin will play at Etna; Mt. Lebanon will face East Pittsburgh; Braddock shows at Homestead and Munhall appears at Millvale.

Tommy Ward Quits Artillery Poloists

Tommy Ward, crack polo star of the 107th Field Artillery, has severed his connections with that organization to play for the Millcreek team, of Youngstown, O.

BOWIE MUTUELS

DREYFUSS BACK AT DESK

President Barney Dreyfuss, of the Pittsburgh Baseball Club, was back at his desk in Pirate headquarters today, having just returned with Mrs. Dreyfuss from Atlantic City, where they spent two weeks. Their daughter, Mrs. William E. Benswanger, will remain at the seashore for several more days.

The Buccaneer owner is highly gratified at reports from Manager Jewel Ens as to the condition of the players and is confident that the club will go to the starting line for the pennant race one week from today in better shape than it has known in several years.

President Dreyfuss may go to Chicago to see the Pirates in their opening championship game against the Cubs next Tuesday.

Pitcher Steve Swetonic reports that the condition of his hurling arm is improving steadily and he hopes to be able to start throwing within two weeks.

George Julius Wins New York Bout

NEW YORK, April 7.—New York's amateur boxers scored a three-to-one triumph over Pittsburgh in the New York Athletic Club last night. Frank Fullam, New York state 160-pound champion, gave the local warriors the victory when he outpointed Chuck Mullins, of Pittsburgh, in the final bout of the competition.

The visiting boxers took the lead with the first bout, in which George Julius turned back Bob Colletti in a 135-pound class battle. After Napolitano evened the score for the locals by scoring a victory over Bob Ruppel, Pittsburgh, 140-pound representative, Elmer Jones gave New York the lead with a victory over Charles Padboric in the 147-pound class.

GIPP, ROCKNE ACE, REAL LEADER

save for the fact that someone was caught holding.

And thus were a lot of well-laid plans nullified.

Gipp figured in another play against the Army in 1917, a play that was peculiarly his own.

The results were much more satisfactory.

Army had blocked a kick early in the game, and recovered for a safety, and the 2-to-0 score was all there was, until the game lacked only a few minutes of completion.

Army had stopped all of Notre Dame except Gipp, and he hadn't proved to be the avalanche into which he developed in later years.

However, Notre Dame got the ball about four yards from Army's goal, with the minutes to play few indeed.

It was fourth down and goal to go.

Brandy called for Gipp to slash off tackle.

CLEVER STRATEGY

Gipp checked signals, and asked Capt. Coughlin to call for time out.

"You can't get anywhere with that play," Gipp protested to Brandy, who argued that if Gipp couldn't get anywhere, who could.

"The whole Army will be waiting for me," insisted Gipp. "I've got a play that will score for us. I'll fake that tackle slash, at the right side, and you hang onto the ball and go over left guard."

Though Brandy protested, Gipp had his way.

When the ball was snapped, Gipp started off tackle, and practically all the Army, as he had predicted, piled up in front of him.

Brandy, still having the ball, actually walked the four or five yards necessary across the goal line, without an Army man being around to halt him.

Concerning another of Gipp's plays, Nebraska again being the victim, there is a story which hasn't a great deal to do with the subject at hand, but which may as well be related.

There was considerable wagering on the game, and a party from Oklahoma did some of it, reaching the game a few minutes after it had started.

HARD TO TAKE

The opening kickoff was taken under the goal posts by Gipp, who handed it to Bergman, the latter racing the length of the field for a touchdown.

The teams lined up for the next kickoff, and it was at this point the Oklahomans arrived.

They had wagered on Notre Dame. They saw the game, as far as anyone could convince them, and as the subsequent scoring developed only seven points for Notre Dame and nine for Nebraska, it took some convincing before they accepted their winnings.

Downtown, after the game, when the papers proclaimed that Notre Dame had won, 14 to 9, the Oklahomans were still going around, remarking what a strange country it was, that even the newspapers insisted on printing the wrong score of the football game.

Delight Tells Lorry She's Engaged to Another

CHAPTER XLVI.

Lorrimer arrived in the room, looked from one to the other.

"Want me?" he asked.

"Not permanently," smiled Delight. "I've just been telling Mr. Mitchell that you've asked me to marry you, Lorry. Very decent of you and all that. And I want to tell you, before a reliable witness, that a previous engagement keeps me from accepting. You see, Lorry, a year or so after I had word of your death, I met a man named Harry Blanchard. He was in the same road show. A very good-looking person. He's in Australia now and has been writing me for some time to come out and join him. I don't want to—much—so probably I shan't. But he's the reason why I can't marry you, because," she said, "I'm married—to him. And there's a record of that marriage, in Liverpool."

Lorrimer stared at her. He said, after a moment:

"Why didn't you tell me?"

"Because I'm not a very nice person. Harry and I have separated for a good many years.

Leaves for England

"We got on each other's nerves. Also he's been more or less a rolling stone. No moss, but lots of polish. I couldn't see tenting tonight in the Australian bush. The last letter I had from him came before I left for the States. He's made good, in a sense. He feels domestic; he urged me to come out. I was half inclined to do so, being on my uppers, but the chance to take a part in this revue came along and—so I did too. Then you arrived on the scene. It was something of a temptation to accept that gallant offer of yours, Lorry; we could have gone through a nice formal engagement, and I rather fancy I could dispose of Harry in the courts quite quietly and with no one being the wiser. But I've decided not to. After all, he wasn't a bad sort, and they say Australia has a beautiful climate," said Delight, "so I might change my mind about going. I don't notice managers rushing forward with offers in these United States. That's all. Now will you two young men leave me to take a nap? Siesta. An old Spanish custom, I believe. And Lorry, tell your mother that as soon as I can wiggle this damaged fin of mine I'll move on. She's been awfully kind, really, and I don't want to trespass any longer than I have to." She broke off and looked at Lorrimer, who stood staring at her like a man unable to believe his ears, his face the mirror of strange and conflicting emotions markedly reflected—anger, relief, gratitude. "Oh, please go," said Delight.

Larry touched Lorrimer's arm. "Let's step on it, old man," he said, rather low.

"You're a good trouper," said Larry to Delight.

A few days later Delight Harford went back to New York. She had had a long talk with Mrs. Lorrimer, in which she had told her a little more fully and much less cynically of her reasons for "coming clean, as they say over here." And Mrs. Lorrimer had listened, finding herself, as is human nature, liking the slangy, careless woman now that she knew all danger from her was past. She herself took her to town and arranged for her brief stay at a hotel—not the shabby one in which Larry had found her—before the boat sailed for England, upon which Mrs. Lorrimer had procured passage for her.

Meets With Success

"I've talked to Travers," she said during their conversation, "and he feels as I do. We must—help you all we can. We feel, in a sense, responsible. Please, my dear, don't let foolish, stubborn pride stand in your way. If you decide to go—out to your husband, or if you plan to stay in London and look for an engagement, you'll need money. I—want you to take it from me, as a free gift," she begged.

"Oh, I'm not proud," Delight denied with a short laugh. "I have 'borrowed' before this—with no intention of returning it. You may as well know that about me. But in this case I've saved my own face. I'm not being—bought off."

Margaret Lorrimer flushed slightly.

"No, of course you're not."

"Then," said Delight, with a sudden, rather charming simplicity, "I'll take whatever you offer me and be glad of it. And grateful. I'm not a kid. I've been up against it. I don't want to be again. I haven't the stamina somehow to keep on facing life in dingy lodging houses, on very little food and one pair of silk stockings, going the rounds of the agencies. Perhaps, after all, I'll go out to Australia. I might make a go of it with Harry after all," she said, thoughtfully; "we've both been through the mill; we can make allowances for each other."

So in the end, she went back to England, very comfortably, with the knowledge that, besides money in her pocket, she possessed a very substantial sum in a London bank, which Mrs. Lorrimer had promptly cabled over, enough and more than enough to see her through a long time of waiting, in London, for an engagement; and far more than sufficient to take her to Australia and back again, should she decide to go.

She didn't, however. Months later they heard of her in London, in an excellent part in a musical comedy—one of those gamin parts, tough, slangy, careless, amusing, full of cynical wisdom and with a disregard for what was left of her beauty, a part always popular both here and abroad. As a cockney slavey, doing an entertaining mop-pail dance and singing an insolent and entertaining number, "Diana Hackett" made a great personal success. She wrote Mrs. Lorrimer, then:

Goes to Mountains

"I've made it—after all these years. I couldn't have done it if you hadn't freed me from anxiety. I bought good clothes, took a decent flat and acted bored, around the agencies. It's the shabby, worried women who don't get the parts. And I've sent for Harry. He can sell out and come home. Perhaps I'll go over in that part, too. Mrs. Harry Blanchard. Funny, isn't it?"

But this was a long time after. Before leaving Westwood House Delight saw very little of Lorrimer. The day after her confession to him, he went up to the Adirondacks to see Mac, who was getting so much better that he had become unruly.

"You'd better come up, if you can, Mr. Lorrimer," wrote the chief doctor, "and persuade him to stay with us for a while longer. He insists he's fit to become a riveter or a stevedore."

So Lorrimer, very glad of the opportunity, went up to see Mac and persuade him, with orders, pleas and profane language, to stay. After which, reluctant to return home until he had looked deeply into his own heart and confronted what lay hidden there, he went further north and stayed in a camp in the Big Woods which Wynne owned, and which was always in order, a caretaker being there. He had wired Mr. Wynne, "May I stop off at Moose Camp?" to which Wynne had replied, "For as long as you wish."

In the camp, set on the shores of a lost blue lake, rippled with the spring wind, chill with winter still, there by the great and healing trees, Lorrimer thought over the past months.

He'd said goodbye to Delight, had stammered: "If there's ever anything I can do—" He meant it. In a sense he missed her, reluctant though he had been to find her, finally. She had been part of him. Now, it was as if she had never existed. She'd laughed into his eyes and said, "Of course I'll let you know. Was I ever known to turn down a good offer? Well, just once; but circumstances are agin me. And there's one thing you can do for me, right now."

Wanted Mary Lou

What?" he asked, eagerly.

"Find my understudy; tell her I'm giving up the part and put her name up in lights, Lorry."

He hadn't answered.

He knew that it was Mary Lou he wanted; knew that he had loved, still loved her; knew that the sudden intrusion in his life of that vanished Delight had made no difference. Yet it had been so hard to adjust himself, harder still to face the fact that perhaps after all every word Mary Lou had said to him, every evidence of her caring for him which he had treasured, upon which he had built so much, might be, as her coming to him had been, playacting, deception, a salaried part, a necessary measure, camouflage.

Yet—how honest had been her eyes! If she had not cared, would she have taken such pains with him? And she'd been happy. He could have staked his life on that.

DAILY TRUE STORY — Once Upon a Time

Governess Accepts Rich Employer's Proposal

"Once upon a time," said Miss Randlett, "there was—"

"Why do they start once on a time?" Jackie asked.

"Because they happened once upon a time, dear. Don't you want to hear about Jack and the Beanstalk?"

"Uh-huh."

"What's that?"

"I mean, yes'm."

Miss Bernice Randlett pinched Jackie Morton's red cheek and went on with her story.

Another Jack Morton was listening. He was little Jackie's father, who had come across the lawn without a sound, not at all intending to snoop, but merely as a short cut. He was going to take Jackie and the new governess for a ride up the mountain.

He had paused to listen. He had to do this. So many governnesses had been impossible. He had come upon them reading novels and letting Jackie play about without a thought, or they had been cross and used rather slangy talk to the youngster.

It was no easy problem to bring up Jackie since his mother had died. Mr. Morton could have put him in some splendid place to be cared for. It wasn't a question of money. He had plenty, but Morton wanted his boy with him. It had been a tragedy, losing his mother. It would be a double tragedy to take him away from his father.

There were others who did not think so.

His sister-in-law for one. She was a woman of 40, somewhat of an Amazon, physically as well as in a social way. She had a daughter by a previous marriage, and there was no reason on earth that she could see why this daughter should not take the place of little Jackie's mother.

Mrs. Horace Morton did not say as much in so many words to John Morton, but she made him understand her views plainly enough.

What angered her was that she couldn't get John Morton to reveal his views on the subject.

Mattie Warren was pretty enough and 20, and she was quite as determined as her mother to become Mrs. John Morton.

Just now Mrs. Horace Morton, the sister-in-law, and her daughter, Mattie, were away.

That was some relief.

Morton listened as the new governess told Jackie the story. He noted her patience when Jackie broke in with his childish questions, such as, "Was the beanstalk as high as the moon?"

Morton Approves

Morton came out on the gravel path and sat down on the bench in the great acre of undulating lawn at the south of his country place. Jackie saw him just as Miss Randlett was finishing the story.

"Get me a beanstalk, Popsie—a big, tall one; I want to get up high," he pleaded, running over to his father.

"And what else do you say?" Miss Randlett asked softly.

"Er—please, Popsie."

John Morton shot Miss Randlett a glance of approval.

"Beanstalks are out of date, son," Morton said, "but we'll go up high just the same, up to the lookout on Cherry Mountain."

He might have taken the big car and his chauffeur, but he preferred the smaller, sporty roadster. He liked to drive.

Jackie insisted on sitting on the outside, so that Miss Randlett sat between him and his father.

A trip to the mountain was delightful. At the top Jackie asked more questions. He was forever asking questions.

They made several more trips to the mountain during the week.

One afternoon when they returned Jackie had fallen asleep against Miss Randlett, which made her unconsciously lean a little against Morton.

In this way they drove up to the veranda.

They eyed Miss Randlett very severely. They had not seen her before.

Morton merely said: "This is Miss Randlett, Jackie's new governess," and then he took Jackie from her arms.

"He's getting too heavy for you," he said.

He took Jackie up to his room, followed by Miss Randlett.

"My sister-in-law and her daughter," he said, by way of explanation; then he added, "they—er—mean well, but are rather inquisitive—don't let it bother you."

She smiled and nodded.

Down on the veranda Mrs. Horace was cross-questioning Austin, the butler.

"She's been here two weeks? She doesn't look efficient — is she, Austin?"

"Mr. Morton thinks so," the blundering Austin said.

Annoyed by In-Laws

Mrs. Horace and her daughter nodded grimly at each other.

"She looks flighty to me—"

Morton came down. Austin effaced himself. Mrs. Horace began to quiz Morton.

"No, I didn't select Miss Randlett. I telephoned to the Hargrave establishment and told them for heaven's sake to send me a governess who was somewhat educated and refined. I had had enough cross—slangy—careless ones. They sent Miss Randlett and she seems to be just what I have been looking for."

"H-m-m-m, perhaps. You never can tell, John. She looks flighty to me, and childish—Jackie needs an older woman."

"We'll keep Miss Randlett for a while and see how it works out."

"It may be too late—she may spoil the boy—and haven't you any pride—to go riding with one of the servants?"

"If Miss Randlett can stand it, I can," Morton said, dryly.

"But, Jack dear," cooed Mattie, entering into it for the first time, "it's the looks of it. How would you take it if anyone else did it?"

"I would say it was none of my affair.

Miss Randlett continued to function as governess for Jackie, and he was getting along beautifully with her.

Mrs. Horace chided the boy for calling Miss Randlett "Bernie," but Morton was there and merely said: "Let the boy alone; why shouldn't he call Miss Randlett whatever he wishes?"

"Men are so blind!" Mattie said, glaring at Miss Randlett, who flushed and took Jackie down to the pool with his sailboat.

Morton disliked a scene. He couldn't ask his dead brother's widow not to call so often, but it annoyed him to have her and her daughter running over every day.

Mrs. Horace Morton and Mattie came upon Morton one forenoon out at the playground, swinging Miss Randlett, who was holding Jackie. It had come about naturally enough. Jackie wanted to swing high—very high. It wasn't safe—he might become dizzy and fall. Morton suggested that Miss Randlett get in the swing and hold him. Jackie was squealing with delight and Miss Randlett, holding Jackie, couldn't keep her skirts tucked in as she would have preferred to do.

Mrs. Horace and Mattie stared for a moment.

"Well!" cried Mrs. Horace.

Morton kept on.

"Are you out of your head, John Morton?" she called.

"Oh, run away, please," Morton said.

Mrs. Horace knew when to stop. She was living largely on Morton's generosity. She went back to the house and told Mattie that she would get rid of that brazen governess at once, before she got John in her "clutches."

Morton picked up a mechanical boat in the village the next day and brought it home for Jackie.

Proposes to Governess

He found Jackie at the pool with his little sailboat. He also heard talk back of the dwarf yews.

"And so you will simply have to take two months' wages and leave; there is to be no argument about it," Mrs. Horace was saying.

Morton stepped out of sight until she disappeared.

Miss Randlett was on the bench, crying. Jackie came up to them.

"Take this boat to the pool," his father said. He sat down beside Miss Randlett.

"Once upon a time," he said, "there were two men, one extremely young who needed a mother; one mature, who needed a wife. The mature man fell in love with the lovely lady—Oh, Bernice, I can't tell stories—you know what I mean."

She knew what he meant.

Jackie came over to have his boat wound up—he stared for a while and then he went away, because they wouldn't pay any attention to him. He went up to the house and said to Mrs. Horace Morton, "Auntie — why are Popsie and Bernie kissing each other so much?"

"Popsie and Bernie" came up the path arm in arm just then and answered Jackie's question quite satisfactorily to everyone—except Mrs. Horace and Mattie.

Judges and Vacations

What About the Guiltless Confined Unfairly In Jail During Those Long Vacations?

Additional evidence of the unfairness of the long summer court vacation, if any such evidence is needed, has not been long in coming to light. Full consideration should be given yesterday's statement of the chaplain of the Allegheny County Jail that no guilty verdict ever is found against four-fifths of the 200 to 300 summer prisoners.

Nobody will worry much about the guilty. The courts, when imposing sentence, can take cognizance of the time such prisoners have spent in jail while awaiting trial.

But that 150 or more individuals unable to furnish bail must wait two months or more to gain freedom simply because judges and lawyers wish an unusually long vacation period is rather more than unjust.

The fact that judges themselves have discussed this question indicates that they are not satisfied with the present arrangement. It is to be hoped that these discussions will speedily reach the point where announcement of reforms can be made.

No insuperable obstacle has been cited. No really worthwhile argument against some better arrangement has been presented. The statement that calling of witnesses and jurors would disrupt vacation plans of corporations and the like can be met with the statement that the calling of witnesses and jurors always dislocates somebody's affairs.

Meanwhile, what of the scores unfairly held locked in such a vacation resort as the county jail?

Voting Districts Cut

Report On Redistricting, If Adopted, Means Big Savings Annually.

N. R. Criss, chairman of the Redistricting Board of Allegheny County, has presented to Judge Harry H. Rowand a report of the board's work, with a petition that it be confirmed. Unless exceptions are taken, it will go into effect Friday, April 17.

A feature that will appeal to the taxpayer is the promise it contains of a large saving in the conduct of elections by the elimination of a number of voting districts, amounting to an estimated sum of $161,000 annually, now paid to election board officials, registration officers, etc., and in rent for polling places.

In cities of the county a total of 371 districts are done away with; in boroughs, 131, and in townships, 57.

This, of course, is made possible by the adoption of voting machines, which will speed up balloting, districts may be consolidated. Thus we get efficiency and economy, plus a voting instrument that certainly will lessen opportunities for crookedness at the polls.

To Guard Civil Rights

House Asks Governor to Investigate State's Company Towns.

The passage of a resolution by the House requesting the Governor to undertake an investigation of company towns and to make recommendations for the improvement of conditions in these communities to the next Legislature may result in some surprising disclosures.

In many company towns every foot of land is owned by a large corporation. In addition to controlling all the houses, the streets, schools and public buildings, the corporation frequently owns the police force and is a complete law unto itself.

Such centralization of ownership, particularly in mining towns, may be unavoidable and would not be objectionable if employers did not take advantage of their dominant positions.

But there is reason to believe that, in at least some communities, no attention is paid to the civil rights of the inhabitants and that the situations are not far from a state of serfdom.

The resolution asks that the Governor recommend ways "to extend to the citizens of these communities local self-government and the ordinary civil rights and privileges of American citizenship."

Fund Drive Going On

Canvass Begins for Funds to Be Used to Put More Men to Work.

The drive of the Allegheny County Emergency Association to obtain $3,000,000 is under way. An army of 1,000 men and women volunteer workers will seek to obtain this sum within the next two weeks. The active solicitation began with contributions of $671,726.94 in cash and $91,627.99 in pledges. Already $730,946.96 has been appropriated for direct relief and employment, showing that the benefits of this plan are made quickly available.

That is something to bear in mind, since men will be given employment as rapidly as the association's funds increase, and those thus employed will be taken off the relief list.

The aim of the canvassers is to obtain $2,000,000 from corporations and their employers and $1,000,000 from individuals.

As it is a practical, humane expedient in a serious crisis, it seems assured they shall succeed.

Two Big Coal Problems

Census Report Shows Fewer Men Mine More Fuel That Is Lower in Value.

A report of the Bureau of Census, just issued, compares bituminous coal production of 1929 with that of 1919, the last previous year in which data on the subject were collected. An illuminating fact is that last year 457,796 workers produced 536,041,149 tons of bituminous coal, against the production of 460,425,836 tons by 545,798 workers in 1919.

Yet, while the collieries were able to produce much more coal with fewer men last year than they were in 1919, the value of the smaller tonnage in the latter year was much greater than that of the greater output last year. The figures are $1,144,322,647 for 1919 and $963,045,236 last year, both f. o. b. mine. The average value per ton at mine in 1919 was $2.49; last year, $1.80.

Since we are able to produce more coal with fewer men, we have the excess to look after as an unemployment problem. Since what they produce is worth less than formerly, we have an industry with its own big problem. Each will take quite a bit of intelligent thinking.

How Lee De Forest Conquered Space

By Archibald Henderson

After Lee De Forest had perfected his marvelous invention of the audion, he began to devote some attention to the commercial possibilities which it opened up. A big company displayed an interest in the "audion amplifier," and promised a report on the matter. Months passed by, while the inventor's means leaked away until he was both penniless and well nigh in despair.

Finally, he received from a stranger an offer of $50,000 for patent rights on the audion amplifier. The stranger represented himself as an attorney for a certain company, and made his offer with the company's authorization. De Forest accepted the offer and received the money. He later learned to his sorrow, it is said, that another company had voted to pay him $500,000 for his invention! Today his various inventions are estimated at the huge figure of twenty-five millions of dollars.

Lee De Forest was born in Talladega, Ala., in 1874. As a lad, he showed the deepest interest in mechanical apparatus of various sorts. He made lots of toys, and even manufactured his own motors. An epochal moment in his life as a boy was hearing a replica of the first Edison tinfoil phonograph. Electricity and its possibilities fired the imagination of the raw, undeveloped lad of 15. He wanted to be an electrical engineer; but above all he aspired to be an inventor. His father had little faith in the possibilities of electricity, especially as at that time no courses in electricity were given in American colleges. But the lad's ambition was dormant only, and far from dead, despite his father's skepticism.

After attending the Mt. Herman Preparatory School, the went to Sheffield College of Yale University. Here he had the good fortune to attend the first course in electricity ever given at any American college. It was not until his senior year that he came to understand just what "electrical waves" really were, as scientists now know them.

In a letter to his father, at the conclusion of his post-graduate work at Yale, he confessed that he had become obsessed with the idea of communication without wires. He had complete confidence in himself, asking only the use of a laboratory in which to carry out his experiments. He was "silly" enough to prophesy that before long radio broadcasting would become a world-wide diversion.

At first, after leaving Yale, he toiled in the workshop of the Western Electric Company at Chicago. He lived in a tiny room; and it was here that his great invention, the audion, was born. To his associates at Yale, he wrote: "If only I had more space!" And this from the inventor who was later to be known as the "conqueror of space." By 1906 he introduced to the world the audion on three element vacuum tube, subsequently to play the leading role in wireless development. Radio tubes are now annually produced in the millions for receiving sets. The vacuum tube is one of many inventions in the history of science which had its birth amid humble surroundings.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

The Stormiest Sea!

Some ships sail out always on placid tides
And meet no tempests on their happy course,
Before their prows a singing sea divides
And favoring winds lend them their kindly force;
While others struggle on through angry waves
With timbers trembling from terrific blows,
Their sailors picturing deep, unquiet graves
On the white floor where ceaseless ocean flows,

So would I go, a ship that fears no gale,
But gains in courage every storm-wracked hour,
And while it fights its way with close-reefed sail
Rejoices fiercely in its new-found power.
I would wrest triumph from adversity
And gain my goal through even the stormiest sea!

Two Chinese Gods

One They NEED, the Other Should Go.

CHINA'S "GOD OF CHILDREN." CHINA NEEDS HIM

Many gods are in China, land of more than 400,000,000 inhabitants, largely devoted in recent years to fighting famine and disease.

These two pictures show samples of gods that satisfy the longings of ignorant people demanding gods actually visible before their eyes.

Educated Chinese do not need gods of this kind and do not pay any attention to the fat gentleman, God of Children, or the savage person, God of War.

The intellectual Chinese follow the teachings of Confucius, who, long before the beginning of the Christian era, said: "Do not do unto others what you would not have them do unto you." Preaching a philosophy of respect for others, and for law.

Hence the cheerful, smiling god, with the children crowding about him. You make offerings to him if you want more children.

CHINA'S GOD OF WAR. HE IS BUSY

Hence, also, the powerful, scowling bearded creature representing men's age-long desire to kill each other wholesale.

If you want to win your war you try to placate this war god with presents.

Perhaps it would be better for China if the God of Children were not so busy, and the population not so great. That god would not thank you, however, for suggesting birth control.

It surely would be a good thing for China if the War God could be abolished, although it might be difficult to feed all the children brought to earth by the "God of Children," if there were no wars, famines and plagues to kill them off.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

What do your children read—WHEN YOU'RE NOT LOOKING?

"Oh, they're not very crazy about reading," you say. "Youngsters nowadays—especially those of high school age—have so many school activities and sports. Not much time for reading. And—to tell you the truth—I've never really inspected their reading, but I'm sure it's all right. Adventure and detectives stories, with a few nice, wholesome romances—you know, the kind of thing you and I read at 17."

That's what you think? Well, it's undoubtedly a nice, comfortable way for a doting father or mother to think. But you might be surprised! Other parents, just as doting as you, have been.

Here are facts which may put a slight dent in your paternal complacency. Recently the parent-teacher associations of San Francisco and adjacent cities decided to do a little investigation of juvenile reading.

They listed the names of 24 periodicals which are devoured as "ginger bits" by our younger set. You can see them on any news stand.

Have you read any of these "red hot numbers"? Neither had these San Francisco and East Bay mothers, but they hastily proceeded to do so. With the result that the district attorney of Alameda County ordered the publications banished from news stands and stores by sundown that night.

"Quite right!" you say.

Yes, indeed. But don't let it stop at that.

This is YOUR party, too, fond parent. Remember—these publications were not scanned by "horrid boys and girls." They were read by Nice Kids.....girls as dainty and demure as your Rosabelle.....boys as clean and wholesome as your Thomas Allen, AND BELIEVED. From these salacious pages, and from movies which match them in stupidity and nastiness, these young Americans GATHERED A THEORY OF LIFE WHICH THEY ACCEPTED AS A GUIDE FOR FUTURE CONDUCT.

These boys and girls were as curious about life as you and I were at their ages. They went to those pages, to those movies, wanting to be "wised up," seeking PRACTICAL INFORMATION. THEY CAME AWAY WITH EVERY VALUE CHEAPENED, EVERY IDEAL TARNISHED. What could sermons from Mamma, dear—dead-ones, like Mamma, Papa and Teacher mean in the face of Inside Dope like that? Less than nothing at all.

Then we wonder "what in heck possesses these modern kids?" That's part of what possesses them. WHOSE FAULT IS IT?
